FOREWORD

Once in every college year it is the privilege of the Junior Class to present to the assembled multitude in Oberlin College an annual.

The Class of 1923, taking advantage of the time honored custom, presents to you this the thirty-third volume of the Hi O Hi. There are certain standards which have been established in the minds of Oberlin students by which the Hi-O-Hi is to be judged. It should be a worthy product of Oberlin College, it should truthfully portray the interests of the institution, and above all it should be in the days to come a welcome reminder of one of our four years at Oberlin College. With such ideas in mind we have gone to work.

Now, as we draw on the dusty cover of our typewriter, and lock the door for the last time, we hope that we have lived up to the traditions which have been built up by our predecessors. We hope that the 1923 Hi-OHi may be more than a book to you. We hope that it may so exemplify Oberlin life that it will be a living and vital thing.

Our editorial conscience would prick us if we did not express our gratitude and appreciation to all those who have helped to make this annual such as it is. To the Faculty, who have aided us in every way; to the student body, who make this book possible; and to the Junior Class and the members of the Staff who have given unstintedly of time and energy, are due our everlasting and deserved thanks.

The College Administration

THE TRUSTEES. The Board of Trustees of Oberlin College includes the President, ex-officio, and twenty-four others. The Trustees are divided into six groups of four each, one group being elected each year. Of the four Trustees elected each year, one is chosen directly by the ballot of the Alumni, and the remaining three by the ballot of the other members of the Board.

According to the College Charter granted by the state of Ohio in February, 1834, the entire responsibility for the government and administration of the College rests with the Trustees. In other words, the final legal responsibility for the College belongs to the Board of Trustees.

THE PRUDENTIAL COMMITTEE. The Trustees meet only twice a year and it is necessary to have a committee empowered to act for the Trustees in the intervals when the Board is not in session. This committee is the Prudential Committee. It is composed of eleven members. Its decision is final in matters of minor importance, but in matters of major importance that admit of delay, the final decision is reserved for the Board of Trustees. The Prudential Committee meets weekly.

THE FACULTIES. Within a year after the College Charter was granted the Trustees passed a vote providing that the internal management of the concerns of the institution should be committed to the Faculty. The By-Laws of the College, codified in 1905, contain this statement: "The General Faculty are entrusted with the management of the internal affairs of the College, but must obtain the concurrence of the Trustees in order to introduce any important change affecting the established methods or principles of administration."

THE DEANS. In the management of the internal affairs of the College the Faculty entrusts to various deans and committees a large measure of responsibility for carrying out the policies of the College and for the oversight of student life. The Dean of the College, the Dean of the School of Theology, the Director of the Conservatory of Music, the Dean of College Men, the Dean of College Women, and the Dean of Conservatory Women are the most important of these officers.

The Class of 1922

It is hard indeed to express just what Oberlin means to those of us who are leaving her doors this year, and it is still more difficult to try to pick out from the many events of the past four years just those which mean the most to all of us, those which will remain in our memories longest, those which express for us the spirit of our Alma Mater.

Her outward aspect has changed many times since we first came to Oberlin in those pre-galosh days of surreptitious "campus dates." Then the Men's Building was a barracks, sugar was allotted to us once a week and fudge vied with "x" in our Freshmen minds as an unknown quantity.

The following year, we had our first glimpse of President King, whom we have since learned to love so well. And though we struggle with insights and convictions, now, in the coming years we will have an ever deepening realization of the clearer, broader vision which he has given us. That year brought also the creation of the "Rec" Hall, and a decrease in the sale of "Life-Savers." Since then we have become accustomed to Proms and to that odor of smoke which seems to cling where once the Life-Savers prevailed. We have seen a gradual return to normal conditions, a slow readjustment after the restlessness of those first two years.

We are glad that it was our lot to be in Oberlin in this time of change, and to know that through it all the Oberlin spirit has remained the same. Despite the outward change it is the same Oberlin spirit that won fame in past years for its fine idealism and strength of purpose. We will know in the future years as we hear of changes, of progress toward that bigger, better Oberlin of our dreams, that her inner spirit is still that of the Alma Mater which we love.

When we shall glance over our memory books and smile reminiscently as we think of long forgotten games, and hikes, and midnight "feeds," may we possess that vision, that freedom of thought and action which our Oberlin would give to us. May we always be true to the spirit of our Alma Mater.

Phi Beta Kappa

The greatest academic honor conferred by any college is the Phi Beta Kappa. It represents the highest achievement in scholarship and only those are elected to its membership who have gained high academic distinction. The Society was founded December 5, 1776 at the college of William and Mary. The Oberlin Zeta Chapter, the sixth in Ohio, was organized in 1907.

“Philosophy, the Guide of Life,” is the motto of the Society, and in endeavoring to create among college students the love of Knowledge and of the Truth and the desire of making Wisdom the “guide of life” it fulfills its purpose.

The Class of 1923

Junior of the College! Isn't that an attractive phrase? It denotes a removal from the verdancy of the Freshman, the excessive wisdom of the Sophomore, and the sighing regret of the departing Senior. It seems to suggest that "golden mean" a poet of old had written about. That happy state in which there is plenty of work and play. For us it assuredly expresses a happy time. We have passed the uncertainty of the Sophomore and Freshman eras, and now have the privileges, pleasures and duties of the Seniors without the added responsibility of wondering what we are to do next year.

Our activities are numerous and varied. We have contributed to the Varsity squads and many of our men wear "the golden O." In class athletics the girls have won the hockey and basket ball championships, while the men have made '23 an antagonist to be taken into account on the field and in the gymnasium. We have worked on the debating teams, Glee Clubs, the Review, and the Hi-O-Hi has kept us rushing about. Indeed we are a busy class; but we find time for jaunts to Sherrill's, for a movie and supper party, a class dance and Prom, for the sleigh ride when the snow is with us, and occasionally for some good hours of recreation at the Library too.

1923 is the first class to spend its four years under the new rules and regulations. Let us remain steadfastly loyal to the fundamental ideals of old Oberlin and continue to demonstrate next year that its guiding principles are ours too.

Social Activities of 1923

THE social activities of the Junior class for the year 1921-22 began with the annual Junior-Freshman hike and picnic on Saturday, October 15. After meeting at the arch the crowd hiked to a large field across from Sherrill's farm. Here the large crowd was divided into four groups in order to facilitate the running off of the contests and the games to be played. Each group, representing one of the eastern colleges. Harvard, Princeton, Yale, or Cornell, sent two of their number to compete in each event. Later there was a game of baseball played by the girls, one team being from the Junior class and the other from the Freshman. This afforded much amusement, especially to the masculine element of the crowd. At the close of the afternoon supper was served and everyone returned to Oberlin in time for the Rec Hall.

The Thanksgiving dance was held in Warner Gymnasium. The gym was simply decorated in the class colors. Exceptionally good, peppy music was furnished by Lentz orchestra and every one had a good time.

A stag held in the Men's Commons, March 18, resulted in a good turn-out, featured by a talk by Dr. Graham, games, tumbling stunts, and a goodly supply of "eats."

On Tuesday night before Spring vacation the Juniors had a good old "get together, have a good time" rally in the form of a movie and supper party. After the matinee at the Apollo theater the crowd went upstairs into Hobbs Hall for a steak supper. During the meal, stunts by the girls from Pyle Inn and the men of Alderfer House proved a most successful entertainment.

As this book goes to the press the Social Committee are deep in plans for the Prom, April 22. A very good orchestra has been secured, charming favors have been selected and everyone is looking forward to this most important social event of the year with pleasurable anticipation.

The Spirit of the Class of Twenty-four

Grey shadows filled the world and all was mist;
 But on a sudden shown the Spiritual Land
 Where souls of mighty heroes lived and moved.
 Greece and Rome stretched back into the mist.
 And on all sides the white-haired Centuries,
 Witnesses of the other days, stood;
 Then in the midst our Alma Mater came
 And, smiling, thus addressed her clear-eyed son,
 The Spirit of the Class of Twenty-Four,
 "I give you first your mother's love, my son,
 For you have followed in the way of Truth.
 My hope in you is large, since I have seen
 That you are arming for the battle field;
 Within the shadows lurk the Foes of Light,
 I fear that they may soon o'errun the earth,—
 But tell me of your college days, my son."
 He answered, "Life, and life abundantly—
 Life in work, and life in manly sport,
 Life in body, life in mind and soul,
 And life in loving and in serving friends."
 The mother, smiling on her clear-eyed son,
 "Yes yours is life,—Strong in sports of youth,
 Twice victor in the tie-ups—Who of us
 Will e'er forget the Challenge from the sky?—
 Lover of vigorous hikes, leader indeed
 In all the college works,—yes, life, my son.
 But heard you not a distant music, son?
 For One there is Who wills, and all His will
 Goes forth as music through the troubled world.
 But they who strive the most to win the earth
 Are like to shut the music from their ears.
 Nay, in your college sports, and on your hikes,
 And even in your tie-ups did you hear,—
 Did you hear the music, son?"
 He answered, "Mother, I did not always hear;
 Yet sometimes, spite of all the world, I heard."
 The kindly mother kissed her son's fair brow;
 But at that moment charged the Foes of Light
 From out their shadows, bearing night and death.
 The Spirit of the Class of Twenty-four,
 With a sword of flame leaped first into the fray;
 Shoulder to shoulder with the Sons of Light,
 Driving back the enemies of the day;
 But sometimes through the tumult, when the fight
 Was at its highest, he heard a distant music,
 And when the music ceased, a mother's prayer;
 And with a shout he led to victory.

The Class of 1925

VERY class that has entered Oberlin has had much the same impressions and aims; aims worthy of Oberlin's ideals, impressions responding to her spirit. In living up to the standard of former classes, the Class of 1925 has had these same impressions, has set up for itself equally high aims.

At the height of class rivalry, we chose our leaders for the year. After carefully sifting all who desired to enter, in order to eradicate Sophomores who still thought they were Freshmen, we settled down to the business of the meeting. The business was accomplished expeditiously and successfully, except for a slight diversion in the form of a band of Sophomore babblers who hurled some dozen empty words at us before they were forced to subside. What organization we had was just completed in time for the tie-up. The advantage of numbers was with the Freshmen, the advantage of organization with the Sophomores; the deciding factor was, which class could make the best use of its advantage. It was the Sophomores who grasped opportunity by its tuft.

As usual, athletics, especially football, were as popular as ever. The Freshmen were fairly successful in the football season, getting away to a bad start, but ended the season showing a real punch.

Social events have been numerous and have helped to make our first year a success. The two annual upper-class events—the Senior-Frosh reception and the Junior-Frosh hike, helped us to know the upper classmen, besides helping us to know ourselves. The Freshman Mixer and Thanksgiving dance carried on the good work of getting acquainted. The reception at President King's home was enjoyed as much as anything during the year. We would here like to express our appreciation of his kindness.

An innovation this year was the appearance of the green ribbons upon the wrists of all Freshmen girls. This is to become the distinguishing mark of the Freshmen women as the cap is of the men.

The Class of '25 has tried to live up to Oberlin's ideals and traditions. We intend to continue in our attempts to uphold Oberlin's good name in all lines.

The Conservatory of Music

It always speaks well for the reputation of any commodity when it still finds ready sale at an increased price; and in the same way it is a source of gratification to all friends of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music that in spite of the fact that its tuition had to be raised last year along with that of other departments in the institution, there has been no appreciable falling off in the attendance. Such a record is a genuine cause for congratulation.

Probably the outstanding event of the year is the raising of the Course in Public School Music from a three year course to one of four years and the granting to its graduates a new and characteristic degree—B. S. M. (Bachelor of School Music). This is entirely in line with a movement throughout the country to recognize the value and necessity of providing expert musical training in our public schools. Oberlin is peculiarly fitted to give these prospective supervisors and teachers just the training they need. With the College and Conservatory to draw from, it has been possible to make out a symmetrical and well balanced course embracing work in both departments; and Oberlin is also particularly fortunate in having as head of this department Prof. Karl W. Gehrkens, everywhere recognized as an authority in this matter. Congratulations and best wishes to all the future B. S. M.'s!

An excellent Artist Recital Course has drawn large and enthusiastic audiences; several notable Faculty recitals have been given; the Conservatory Orchestra is larger than ever and is doing interesting things—all in all a very successful year.

1922 Conservatory

EAch one of the principal departments in the Conservatory is well represented by the various members of the senior class; in fact, the class of 1922 is an orchestra in itself. However, if this orchestra should attempt to play, the strings would be lost at sea in a storm of enthusiastic piano players. The fact that the study of Piano is as essential to a musical education as "Freshman Bible" is to a College course undoubtedly accounts for the large number of "Piano Majors." The sweet-voiced minstrels who sing are second in number only to those who play piano, while still others fill in the ranks with violin, 'cello, and organ. Since this the first year that the degree B. S. M. (Bachelor of School Music) has been offered, the class of 1922 is honored to have in its membership the first two students receiving this degree.

From January 'til June, there is one continuous procession of senior recitals. The new Conservatory alumni pins, which may be worn after one's recital is over, are a mark of rare distinction.

The committee in charge of the Conservatory Christmas Prom was made up entirely of seniors. This was one of the largest social affairs ever attempted by Conservatory students. With proms, recitals, receptions, and frequent class suppers, there is no dearth of social activities for seniors.

Conservatory 1923

The third year Conservatory class started its year with a Hallowe'en party at Dickinson House. Never before had we had one of its kind, which fact made it all the more pleasant. Several of the class members entertained with muisse, which was followed by a dinner served by girls dressed in costumes characteristic of the season.

The class entered whole-heartedly into the social functions of the Conservatory. This was shown by our interest in the Thanksgiving party at the Art Building when six of our number gave the interesting and especially humorous pantomime "Wild Nell, the Pet of the Plains." It is hardly necessary to say we enjoyed the Conservatory Prom given before Christmas. Toward the close of the year we had our annual informal dance.

Since our aim is to reach some goal in the musical realm, let us say that not only in our own school, but around Oberlin some of our talent has been recognized. By the end of the year we expect to be classed as part of the senior class of 1923.

1924 Conservatory

We thank the Class of '23 for giving us the innovated privilege of telling on this page our appreciation of Oberlin College, and all she has done for us in the past two years.

We are deeply impressed with the cordial and democratic spirit which greeted us at the beginning of our first year, and which has prevailed throughout our life here.

We were started on the right track at our very first class meeting, which was presided over by one of our worthy upper-class women.

In girls' athletics our class has been particularly well represented, especially in the Conservatory Basketball and Hockey Teams.

The girls found much pleasure in presenting to the first year girls their green and gray ribbon distinctions, a custom introduced this year. But in turn for the seeming misdeed we gave them a free "tour to Oberlin" and dinner.

We have joined in the social life of the school. Our dances and hikes were enjoyed by the large number who attended them. In the music realm also we shine, many of our members having appeared at Students' Recitals.

The class has had several honors bestowed upon it. We are glad to have had the opportunity of helping to discuss the change of rules and traditions. We have also been honored both years by having several of our members hold worthy positions on the Women's Board of the Conservatory, the Women's League and the Senate.

We have and will do our bit in helping to create and perpetuate the "real Oberlin spirit" which prevails around us.

1925 Conservatory

The end of our first year in Oberlin is approaching and we ask ourselves, "What have we gained?" We have learned the meaning of the Oberlin Spirit exemplified so clearly even on our first day in Oberlin, and we have been made to feel a welcome part of the Conservatory.

Our social life began on October third which marked our official entrance into society. On that date we attended the Barrows House Reception and there had an opportunity to meet the members of the faculty and get better acquainted with our fellow students in the Con. The Christmas Prom was another pleasant feature of the first semester. A large number of our class were present and thoroughly enjoyed every part of the program. The big event of the second semester was our class dance in the springtime. The spirit of the season was surely present, for everyone made merry until the end of "Home Sweet Home."

Athletics necessarily form a small part in our life, but we have not forgotten them altogether. The Con basketball team has been the best one for several years, and we are proud to say, that we contributed the center and both guards who helped make it such a success.

Yet hard work has had the greatest share in making this year a happy profitable one at that, together with our recreation, makes us say with sincere enthusiasm "Long Live Oberlin Conservatory."

The Artist Recital Course

The Artist Recital Course for the past year brought an unusual number of novelties; acquaintance was renewed with several old friends not heard for many many years (and that with varying degrees of mutual satisfaction), and opportunity was offered to greet others often heard and always with pleasure.

The course for the first semester was opened with a performance of the one-act opera "The Secret of Susanne," by Wolf-Ferrari, preceded by a program of dance given by the Ruth St. Denis Troupe of Greek Dancers—probably the most striking novelty of the year. This was followed by a concert from the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra, our main dependence nowadays as far as orchestral fare is concerned. Mr. Lynnwood Farnam who so impressed all who heard him at the national meeting of the American Guild of Organists here a couple of years ago, renewed and deepened that impression with a superb organ recital. Mr. Gogorza heard here many years ago and remembered with the utmost pleasure, did about all that was humanly possible to obliterate every trace of that pleasant memory from our minds by arriving late and in an ill humor, and singing a commonplace program entirely unworthy of the artist or the occasion. The bad taste thus left in our mouths was most happily dissipated by the poetic and attractive playing of Ossip Gabrilowitsch, one of the visiting pianists always sure of a warm welcome here.

The honor of opening the second semester's course fell to Theo Karle, well remembered for his work in the May Festival of last year; his song recital being followed by a concert by the Cincinnati Orchestra under Eugene Ysaye. Neither this orchestra nor Ysaye had been heard in Oberlin for many years and never together—so that this concert furnished one of the real novelties of the season. Alexander Siloti, Russian pianist, not heard in this country for more than twenty years, and Mme. Claire Dux of the Chicago Opera Company, a soprano of fine European reputation, never before heard here, gave the last two solo recitals in the course which was brought to a close by another concert by the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra in connection with the May Festival given by the Musical Union under the direction of Dr. George W. Andrews.

The activities of the Musical Union for the year comprised this Festival concert in which they gave Piernes's remarkable work "The Children's Crusade," and their mid-winter concert of various shorter choral numbers. This concert while less pretentious than many similar concerts of the Musical Union brought to its friends much pleasure through the many attractive compositions on its program.

The Graduate School of Theology

The Graduate School of Theology offers four distinct advantages to men and women seeking theological education in preparation for the ministry at home and abroad or for leadership in religious education.

It offers a school without creedal or denominational tie. Through the more than eighty years of its service it has thus been able to stand for the utmost freedom in scholarly religious expression. At the same time it maintains a consistent evangelical emphasis, interpreting religion and theology in the warm, living terms of the founder of the Christian faith.

The School has a Faculty composed of men of large and growing power in the church and the world. Their world contacts fit them to be most helpful in guiding men and women along the path of sound scholarship to a broad, sane, friendly, Christ-like ministry in the church, the community and the world.

The student body is cosmopolitan. Students from eight denominations, from five different countries come together in class. The result is a broad outlook based upon friendly contacts with fellow students of widely varying points of view.

It is a decided advantage to the students of the Graduate School to be linked so closely with the life of the College and Conservatory. The cultural advantages which these offer, the use of college equipment in the Library, Chapel, Gymnasium and Men's Building and the association with the students of other departments are real values.

That these advantages are appreciated is shown by the fact that Oberlin has always had more students than the average theological school, and by the fact that following the "war slump" the attendance is quickly coming back to the pre-war figure. There are twenty-five new students this year as compared with seven a year ago.

The Graduate School still looks hopefully for the day when building costs will make possible the erection of the first unit in the "Theological Quadrangle" and the more adequate housing of its work.

Oberlin in China

In the Province of Shansi, China, Oberlin is carrying on a work which represents in concrete and constructive terms the idealism for which she has always stood. A new Oberlin has been established there—a school for Chinese boys carried on by Oberlin men, and supported by students and alumni of Oberlin.

The Oberlin Memorial School is situated in about the center of the Province of Shansi. The city of Taiku, near which our school lies, is about as far from Pekin as Oberlin is from New York City, and in about the same direction. There, on a fertile plain, within a mile of Taiku, is the Flowergarden—the Campus of Oberlin in Shansi. The campus covers nine acres, and is enclosed, in typical Chinese fashion, by a high wall. The Flower garden is one of the most beautiful spots in the whole province, with large trees, a wealth of flowers, artificial rockeries and characteristically Chinese dormitories and recitation halls.

Since founding of Oberlin in China, in 1908, our school has been growing rapidly. This year 250 boys are at work in the various departments, and it is due only to the limitation of accommodation that there are not twice that number in attendance. There is a faculty of 19 men, four Americans, and the rest trained Chinese. Under their scholarly supervision, the young men are getting a background of what is the best both in the East and in the West—a training which promises much for the rapid awakening of China.

The student life there is very similar to our under-graduate life at Oberlin in some ways. The spirit of each day centers, there as at Oberlin, in the chapel exercises; the Y. M. C. A. is one of the strongest student activities on the campus; literary societies meet weekly, with keen competition in every contest between the two societies; the athletic association supervises the teams in different sports, and arranges schedules of games; and the Glee Club and Bands are in constant demand for all sorts of activities and events, not only in Taiku but in other nearby cities.

One of the most important connecting links between Oberlin and our foster-school in Shansi is the student representative who goes out from Oberlin for two years of teaching, and then returns to Oberlin, bringing first-hand information about the work. Being a student himself, he is able to have an unusually intimate relation with the student body. The students there look to Oberlin as the epitome of all that is fine; and consequently the opportunity for influence for the student representative from Oberlin is unusual. This year Raymond T. Moyer, '21 is Oberlin's representative. He teaches twenty-four hours of English a week, trains the Glee Club and the Bands, and has athletic drill and sports daily. The contribution of the student representative to the work has been felt to be sufficiently important to warrant having two such men in Shansi together, beginning in the fall of 1922.

The Coaches

T. Nelson Metcalf, more popular as just "Nellie," has had several successful years as coach at Oberlin, but this can be termed as his best. His track team proved to be the best balanced in Oberlin's history and was the best in Ohio, excepting State. "Nellie" incidentally turned out a football eleven, which went through its schedule without defeat and beat Ohio State, to the whole country's surprise. To Coach Metcalf goes much of the credit for Oberlin's success upon the gridiron during 1921. His popularity and football knowledge combine to make him an ideal coach.

T. NELSON METCALF

LOUIS F. KELLER

Although the Crimson and Gold basketball team was not quite so successful this year as in 1921, Coach Keller loses none of his well earned praise, because he himself set the record last year in his first year as basketball coach. "Lou" not only turns out an excellent basketball team which can cope with any in the state or country, but he always whips together a baseball nine which wins a majority of games, even though the material may be lacking. To Coach Keller goes a great deal of credit for Oberlin's success on the basketball floor and a fighting team on the diamond.

"O" Club

Created as a social organization, in which all the letter men on the campus could get together as a unit, the "O" Club has gradually widened its scope of work. Last year and also during the greater part of this school year, the club frequently entertained high school athletes and men of high standing in the hope of bringing them to Oberlin. But as was originally intended, there is a desire to put the "O" Club back on its old standard of keeping the "O" men on speaking terms and leave to the new Boost Oberlin Association the work of attracting high school athletes.

The "O" Club includes men who have made their letters in football, basketball, track and tennis, and also the cheerleader and head trainer. Hikes, dances, and monthly meetings serve as mixers for members.

Although on the surface the chief value of the "O" is its indication of athletic service for one's Alma Mater, the insignia makes one an automatic member of as real and valuable a social group as can be found in school organizations. The aim of the club is to engender the same comradeship on the campus as is in evidence on the athletic field. "O" men testify to the great value of playing on an Oberlin team, in that it brings the men together in a way seldom experienced in other lines of college work. It is the purpose of the Club to maintain this feeling among all the members.

Cheering

Without a doubt the cheering system, as worked out during 1921-22, under the direction of Cheerleader Ralph Reed proved to be a distinct success. This was due not only to the efficient organization of an ambitious program, but also to the spirit of "Reedy" himself. He was always on hand to put his energy to the best advantage possible, in bringing out maximum cheering.

Rallies were held for the Wittenberg, Wooster and Reserve football games. The team was given a big sendoff before each game away from home, while Reedy conducted a cheering section of fifty at the Mt. Union battle. One of the most efficient pieces of work was the big celebration given the eleven after the Ohio State victory. The Wooster game gave the cheer leader an opportunity to work out some novel and appropriate stunts. The pajama parade the night before was a huge success, while the stunts and parade after the game were fitting for such hilarious occasion. In addition to the football season the cheerleader took a prominent part at the State Theater in Cleveland during Oberlin Night there. The cheering at the football banquet and the big basketball games was very good. Several sings were managed by the Cheerleader, the most successful of which was the Christmas sing. Probably the biggest job that Reedy had on his hands was the all-College vaudeville.

The assistant to the Cheerleader, Browning and Hutchinson, gave everything they had whenever called upon. Hutch distinguished himself by absorbing some cinema space at the Case game while Browning handled the State celebration in a capable manner. The cheering at the football games, especially the Wooster battle, was successful because of the three-man leading system. Indeed the cheering this year has been spirited and generally, extremely satisfactory.

Season

T. N. METCALF, COACH

RICKARDS, CAPTAIN 1922

"Oberlin's grid team faces hardest schedule in school's history," was the way the Review looked at the 1921 football season. Exceeding brightest expectations, the Crimson and Gold eleven marched through this schedule, undefeated. Winning seven games, tying one and outplaying their oponents in every battle, the Oberlin grid warriors of 1921 set a mark which has not been excelled in the history of Crimson and Gold teams. Handicapped by heart-breaking injuries, which laid up almost the entire backfield in the latter part of the season, the eleven defeated Ohio State, Wooster and Wittenberg, and easily out-classed all other opponents.

Coach Metcalf had a big job before him, when sixty ambitious candidates appeared on Dill Field, September 15. But in two weeks, Wittenberg faced a Crimson and Gold team, which worked as smoothly as an eleven in mid-season form. Partial staleness and injuries to McPhee, Wheeler and Parkhill held the team back in the final games of the season.

Statistics show that Oberlin made more first downs and more yards per rush than any of the elevens played. The Crimson and Gold line was a stonewall, refusing to allow any opponent two successive first downs within the 35-yard line. The successful season can be ascribed to good material, admirable coaching, and a variety of attack.

Wood was the most consistent ground gainer in the backfield, closely followed by McPhee. Wheeler proved to be the best field general and most accurate passer in the state. McPhee and Parkhill showed up wonderfully on defense. These four men comprised one of the fastest and most versatile backfields in the country. Captain Stallings, Winthrow, Will and Marshall will be missed when next year's team lines up, because all were good line men. Next season's eleven under the leadership of Captain Rickards should be successful, if the places of the retiring linemen and backfield stars can be capably filled.

UDEL STALLINGS,
CAPTAIN "DEL"

Stallings, playing his fourth year at left tackle, did the inconceivable and put up a better game this season than heretofore. "Del" was everywhere in every game, being especially disastrous to Ohio State, Wooster and Reserve hopes. Stallings gains no fame by being ranked as the most popular choice for a position on the All Ohio. He is without doubt all-American and will always be remembered as such by all who have seen him play.

REESE RICKARDS, CAP-TAIN-ELECT "WHITEY"

When Rickard's record for 1921 is examined, there is little wonder that he was selected to lead the 1922 eleven. Reese played a great game at end throughout the season, outplaying all opponents and turning back all. His consistent work ranks him as one of the best ends in the state.

LAURENCE McPHEE
"MICKEY"

Up at the Case game, the injection of McPhee into the lineup brought the big crowd to its feet in one of the greatest ovations ever given an Oberlin athlete. It was a testimony of Mickey's popularity, his football genius and his right to a certain place on the All Ohio team. His injury in the Hiram game prevented Mickey from completing his best year in Ohio football, but his work in the State, Mt. Union, Wittenberg and Case games proved his invaluable worth.

ALFRED WHEELER "AL"

For the eighth time Wheeler won his letter in a major sport at Oberlin. Al ran the team in his own incomparable style which disconcerts all opponents. His handling of punts and uncanny accuracy throwing forward passes were on a par with, or excelled the work of any quarter in the state. Al will long be remembered as the pilot of the teams which lost but one Conference game in three years.

WILLIAM PARKHILL
"BILL"

Bill had his best year out on Dill field during the 1921 campaign. Down at State he was heralded as the "great Parkhill." Throughout the Conference backs knew of his shoulders, which stopped many dangerous rushes thru the line. Reports, after the Wooster game, had Bill laid up for the remainder of the year, but he showed his mettle by playing hard, driving games against Case and Reserve.

HARRY WILL "HARRY"

Harry was right on the job whenever called upon, which was quite often. The value of Will as a player is inestimable because of his constant ambition for improvement and his fighting spirit. Such a spirit was bound to add materially to the team's success.

FRANKLIN MAYER "ZIP"

At last Zip got his chance to work regularly, and he proceeded to show his worth, by making three 25-yard dashes through the Wesleyan team, three 30-yard end runs against Wooster, and numerous gains around the Case and Reserve flanks. Mayer's greatest asset was speed, and he used it to the greatest advantage of Crimson and Gold success.

LLOYD WITHROW
"WITHY"

Withy was the hardest man and the scrappiest player on the team. His fight drew no penalties. It was clean, but his heavier opponents changed their attitude toward Withy before the finish of every game. Withrow's ability to guess the plays helped the line out a great deal. His absence will be marked during the 1922 season.

RALPH MARSHALL
"RALPH"

For the first time, Marshall won his letter. But his general style of play indicated that he was capable of holding his work up with any letter man. Ralph was not a sensational player, but the fact that he was a prominent cog in Oberlin's 1921 stone-wall, warrants him a place in the memory of Oberlin football fans.

HAROLD WOOD
"WOODY"

Woody's phenomenal work as a most consistent ground gainer was the cause of several touchdowns this year. In the Mt. Union game he ripped off two 30-yard runs at critical points. His neatest piece of work was against Reserve, when he dashed 60 yards for the only score of the game.

Woody's long stride and knee action should carry him out of many more tackles in 1922.

EDWARD TENNEY
"RED"

Tenney was one of those Oberlin ends who outplayed all opponents and made it possible for Crimson and Gold backs to endrun the enemy's flanks for big gains. Red stopped the hard-smashing Winters at Wesleyan on his first play. He should be valuable adjunct to the 1922 eleven.

ARTHUR WINTERS
"ART"

Art started at a strange position, but he looked perfectly at home around the left wing from the very first. A bad knee kept him out of a few games. Toward the middle of every game, quarters would give up their attempts around Art's position and resort to line plays or passes.

ROBERT JONES
"BOB"

When injuries forced the regulars out of the game in mid-season Jones went in and proved himself a halfback of no mean ability. His work in the Case and Reserve games was deserving of the greatest praise. Bob should be a whirlwind in his two remaining years of football.

ROBERT BOWEN
"BOB"

Bob is another sophomore who starred on the line. His best performance was in the Ohio State battle. He opened up big holes for quarter sneaks and several times broke through the State line to nail backs before they could get under way. Bob was another one of those linemen who can guess plays with a rare degree of accuracy.

HAROLD HAHN
"HAROLD"

Consistency was Hahn's chief claim to fame during the 1921 season. His work at right tackle was not phenomenal in individual plays, but his play as a whole shows up favorably with any right tackle's work in the state. Harold has two more years in which to turn back thrusts at his position.

ROBERT McFARLAND
"MAC"

Mac was another representative of the second year men who gave strength to the famous 1921 line. He was a hard worker, ever ready to improve his play. In the Ohio State and Wittenberg games Mac displayed a special antipathy to opposing backs.

Wittenberg

Wittenberg came up to Oberlin for the opening game, with the record of a clean slate for three years. When the "Tigers of the West" departed they had sustained a 14-0 defeat. The game was hard fought throughout, remaining uncertain as to the outcome until the third quarter, when McPhee grabbed a punt and raced through the Wittenberg team for a touchdown. A second touchdown was made in the final period, when Parkhill intercepted a pass on Wittenberg's 20-yard line. A series of bucks carried the ball over the line. Oberlin gained 176 yards to 116 for Wittenberg.

Ohio State

Then came that memorable conflict down at Columbus, which boosted Oberlin to the zenith of football fame and convinced the country that the Crimson and Gold had a high class eleven. That sensational 85-yard march down the field in the third quarter, culminating in a pass to Parkhill over the line for a touchdown, will ever live in the memories of Oberlin adherents. State scored six points in the first few minutes of play, when Huffman blocked a punt and carried the ball over. Every Oberlin man played an unbeatable game, which brought dismay to the State team and silence to the State crowd. It was a great victory, fairly earned. Oberlin made nine first downs while State was accumulating five.

Mt. Union

Eddie Casey, with his waiting Mounts, received the Metcalf barrage on the following Saturday. They were determined to beat the team that beat State, but Oberlin's invasion repulsed the enemy and gave the Crimson and Gold its third straight victory, by a 13-0 count. Oberlin was slow in starting, but a drive in the second quarter with a concluding pass to Stallings for a touchdown, and Wood's 30-yard dash in the final period, accounted for the two scores. Mt. Union had several chances given to score, because of Crimson and Gold fumbles, but each time the Oberlin line closed up and denied any attempts while Oberlin's backs broke up all forward passes. Oberlin made eight first downs and gained 186 yards, while Mount was making three first downs and 71 yards.

Hiram

Coach Metcalf was given his only chance to ease up during the week of the Hiram game. Substitutes aided by McPhee, Wood and Wheeler ran up a score of 38 to 6. Hiram made a touchdown when Kelker picked up an Oberlin fumble and ran 30 yards. Wood averaged from ten to fifteen yards every time he carried the ball. McPhee and Wheeler also tore off some big gains. The feature of the game was Jones's 55-yard return of a kickoff. This game was dearly won, because of McPhee's injury to his knee, which made him useless for the remainder of the season.

Ohio Wesleyan

Ohio Wesleyan threw a scare into the Oberlin camp by holding the Crimson and Gold scoreless for the first half. Misgivings gave way to enthusiasm in the second half, when passes between Wheeler and Parkhill resulted in three touchdowns. Mayer and Jones starred in this game, showing to good advantage in McPhee's and Wood's positions. Mayer tore through the Wesleyan defense in the second half for big gains, while Oberlin's aerial attack proved the undoing of Ohio Wesleyan. Wesleyan put up a great game in the first two periods, holding Oberlin off and threatening to score herself. The hard pace began to tell toward the end of the game, when the Crimson and Gold attack went more smoothly. Oberlin gained 312 yards to 129 for Wesleyan.

Wooster

Then came the big game of the year for Oberlin, that never-to-be-forgotten Wooster feud, witnessed by six thousand rooters and won by the better team, the Crimson and Gold. Wooster scored in the first quarter on a short end run, after recovering an Oberlin fumble on Oberlin's 10-yard line. Undaunted, the Crimson and Gold came right back and scored a touchdown from the 1-yard line after Wheeler had carried a pass 30 yards. In the final quarter Oberlin worked the ball down to the 8-yard mark where a pass to Rickards netted a touchdown, and made the final score 14-6. Stallings played a great game for Oberlin, roving up and down the line and stopping everything aimed at his side of the line. Mayer was the best ground gainer by reason of his long end runs. Wood, as usual, proved to be the most consistent ball carrier. Oberlin gained 313 yards to 199 yards for Wooster.

Case

Case 7, Oberlin 7, may sound like a blot upon the 1921 record of the eleven, but it means absolutely nothing. Using three sub backs, Oberlin completely outplayed the strong Case team on a field unfit for anything but a mud slide. It was not until the third period that Jones intercepted a pass and ran down the side line for a touchdown which broke the scoreless tie. But Hale, of Case, saw his chance in the last quarter to tie the count. Picking up a short punt on the first bound and catching Oberlin eleven flatfooted, he sprinted down the side line for a touchdown. Stallings and Rickards played great games, especially on defense. Crimson and Gold gains totalled 184 yards, while Case could make but 89 yards.

Reserve

In a mud battle Oberlin vanquished Reserve in the final game of the season. The Crimson and Gold eleven piled up no less than fourteen first downs to two for Reserve, but the final score was only 7-0. Wood broke through the line in the first five minutes of play and ran 60 yards for a touch-down. Stallings, Mayer, Wheeler, Withrow, Parkhill, Will, and Marshall played their last grid games for Oberlin. Several chances to score were lost within Reserve's 5-yard line, due to fumbles or failures to gain.

Captain Martin took his eleven through six hard games with but one defeat. Freshman hopes for leadership received a setback when the 1925 team was beaten by the Juniors and Sophs. The Seniors gave a good account of themselves in every game, but were forced to wind up the season with no victories to their credit.

Basketball Team

Although Oberlin's 1922 basketball team did not equal the excellent record set by the 1921 squad, it has the satisfaction of knowing that every victory was decisive and no defeat came until the opposing team had been given a hard fight and a close score.

Coach Keller started practice with four letter men in the fold, Captain Wheeler and Nye forwards, and Winters and Marvin guards. After the Reserve defeat, Wood, last year's center, came out and added greatly to the attack of the team. With these players as a nucleus, Keller whipped together a five which defeated the Michigan Aggies, Miami, Kenyon, Hiram, Reserve, Buffalo, Hamilton and Otterbein, and in addition gave Syracuse a hard and close game.

Some difficulty was found in finding a good running mate for Wheeler at forward. Nye, Stallings, Sheffield, and Jones were used at different times with varying success. Marvin and Winters proved to be about the two best defensive guards in the state. Offense of opposing teams always struck a snag when they reached the territory covered by these men. They put up their best game against Reserve, when the Red and White was held to four field baskets, all from the center of the floor. Wood at center proved to be a bear on close shots and a bane to all opponents. His ability to break up passes and start the ball down the floor gave Oberlin many chances to score. Bowen played a good defensive game in his spasmodic appearances.

Captain Wheeler was high scorer for the third time in his basketball career. His foul-shooting was above the ordinary, generally accounting for an average of ten points per game. Al rose to his most accurate heights in the Kenyon game when he caged nine baskets, and made Oberlin's first 22 points. Nye, Stallings, and Wood were usually good for a couple of baskets per contest, while Marvin and Winters, especially the latter, were very successful on long range tosses.

Prospects for next season are extremely uncertain, due to the graduation of Wheeler, Nye, Marvin, and Stallings. Men about whom a good team can be built are Winters, Wood, Jones, Bowen, Dyck, and Landis.

Hiram

In a slow and uninteresting game, Oberlin barely nosed out Hiram 23—18 in the first contest of the basketball season. Hiram displayed some snappy passing which bothered the Crimson and Gold throughout the game. Inability to hit the basket was prevalent among the players of both teams, resulting in a low score game.

Reserve

Defeating an Oberlin athletic team for the first time in three years, Reserve filled her cup to the brim to the tune of 25—21. Long shots from the center of the floor by Coss and Davis proved the undoing of Oberlin. With the count 23—10 against her the Crimson and Gold staged a great rally in the final five minutes, which boosted the score to 23—21. Wheeler's five baskets helped out in this final spurt, but Reserve got a long toss and the gun ended the battle.

Kenyon

With Wood and Stallings in the line-up, Oberlin staged a comeback against Kenyon in the second half, changing an adverse score of 16—13 in the first period to 34—22. The floor work of Wood and Stallings, and Wheeler's nine baskets, six from the center of the floor, gave Oberlin the edge.

Michigan Aggies

This was the most exciting game of the season. Oberlin obtained an early lead, through Wheeler's three tosses from mid-floor, and held it throughout the battle. The Aggies however kept pressing at all times, caging sensational shots from long distances. Wood, Stallings, Winters, and Marvin worked the ball in for close shots in the second half and managed to nose out the enemy by one point, 26—25.

Case

Captain Wheeler and his men played a disappointing game at Cleveland against Case, losing out by 21—20 after having rolled up a six point lead. Close guarding by the Scientists and slow passing by the Crimson and Gold accounts for the defeat. Oberlin simply could not get started, and consequently was forced to accept the small end of the score.

Otterbein

Using substitutes, Oberlin had no trouble in beating the Tan and Cardinal five 39—27. Wheeler and Nye scored 15 baskets between them, while Winters put up a wonderful guarding game. Otterbein started to shoot successfully from the center of the floor in the second half and Coach Keller was compelled to send in his first string men again.

Reserve

Coming down to Oberlin for her last contest with a Crimson and Gold team, Reserve was surprised with a different brand of basketball than she had encountered at Cleveland. Thirty-five fouls, many of which were personal, made the game very rough. Winters, Marvin, and Bowen held Reserve to four field goals, all of which were made by Fulton from mid-floor. Good teamwork in the last half allowed Oberlin to forge ahead and clinch the game, 26—21. With the score 21—20, Oberlin opened up and carried the ball into the basket for several close shots, two of which were successful.

Eastern Games

On their swing around the Eastern circuit the Oberlin basket tossers played their best brand of basketball, winning two out of three hard games. Buffalo University fell first, 27—26, when Stallings found his eye and shot five baskets. Wheeler's free throw in the final seconds of play won the game. Oberlin, on the following night, forced Syracuse to go the limit to win, 28—21. The Crimson and Gold led at half-time, 10—9, and kept the score even until the last two minutes of play, when the Easterners secured a commanding lead. Wheeler's 13 points, and Wood's three baskets kept Oberlin in the game. Coach Keller's men downed Hamilton College in the final contest 25—22. Wheeler again made 13 points, while Wood, Nye, and Winters lodged two shots apiece in the basket. Wheeler shot 21 fouls out of a possible 29 during the trip.

Case

Another disappointment was administered to an Oberlin crowd when Case came down from Cleveland and nosed out the Crimson and Gold 20—18 in a clean and hard fought game. During the first half the Scientists made the best of all their advantages and obtained a 14—7 lead. Oberlin came back strong in the second half. With the count 20—14 and two minutes left, Wood and Wheeler caged close shots. Then with a few seconds left, Oberlin took the ball down the floor and Stalling shoved it in, but the gun went off at this point, the referee said the game was over, and Case went home happy.

Miami

In the final game of the season the Crimson and Gold played sensational basketball and defeated Miami on the home floor, 34—28. Captain Wheeler ended his basketball career fittingly with twenty points and a great game. The entire Oberlin team played wonderful ball, at one time leading Miami by fourteen points. Wheeler made six baskets, Nye three, Wood three and Marvin one.

Interclass basketball in 1922 was not up to the usual standard due to the large number of Sophs and Juniors out for Varsity. The 1925 and 1922 quintets played good basketball throughout the season, finishing in a tie. The Frosh team improved as the season grew old and was easily the best five when the last game was played with the Seniors.

Intramural Basketball

More interest was taken in house games this year than ever before. Two leagues, boarding house and rooming house, with twelve teams each gave practically every man in school an opportunity to play. In the boarding house league, Martin Inn, Cranford and Jenny's were the best teams, while West Lodge, Kole Bin and Woodshed fought it out in the rooming house race.

Season 1921

Contrary to "Review" forecasts that Coach Keller's nine would doubtless emulate the White Sox, hitless wonders of years ago, Oberlin's baseball team gradually improved its batting average, until at the close of the 1921 season the team's average was near the three hundred mark.

Lou Keller performed his usual act of rejuvenating a raw squad into a well oiled machine, which was able to set back the strong Waseda team from Japan, in the season's finale. Although only three letter men were back, and despite the handicap of the necessary experiments, Keller was rewarded with a successful season.

The first victory at Case seemed to presage a smooth working nine, but defects in the infield came out in the second Case battle. After a shift the team pulled together and played the remaining games with almost unbroken success.

Captain Andrews pitched most of the games, with Nye capably assisting in four contests. Andrew's best efforts were his two shut-outs against the Japs and Reserve, and his allowance of six measley singles to Michigan A. C. "Del" Stallings handled his slants in big league style, and pounded out a 400 batting average. Jamieson, Landis, and Nye batted into the 300 class. The infield, excepting three games, played nearly errorless ball. The outfield left nothing to be desired when it came to pulling down long flies or low liners.

Besides Captain-elect Jamieson, the 1922 team has Stallings, Sheffield, Wheeler, Rosen, Landis, Nye and Marvin left as veterans.

Case

With two weeks of outdoor practice, Oberlin inaugurated the season by routing Case 23—1. Three Scientist pitchers were sent to the showers by a hail of nineteen bingles. Stallings led with four, while Andrews completely baffled the Casers.

Reserve

Keller's pets continued the Cleveland campaign in making four runs on three hits, while Captain Andrews blanked Reserve. Oberlin played errorless ball throughout the game, again and again frustrating the Clevelanders' well meant efforts to score. The trio of hits were judiciously confined to the second inning, which explains the victory. Joe Rosen played left field in great style, pulling down several hard drives.

Michigan Aggies

Oberlin's infield blew up in their first home game, giving the farmers the count 9—6. Both teams hit on a par, but the superior fielding by the Aggies told the difference. The Crimson and Gold cut down the big green team's lead in the seventh and eighth innings, but could not quite reach.

Case

This 9—3 defeat came as an unlooked for surprise and a complete reversal of form. Oberlin went to pieces in the fourth and ninth frames, giving Case a commanding lead, while Getman was holding his opponents to three tallies.

Coach Keller immediately shifted his team about and secured good results in the following game.

Michigan Aggies

Oberlin invaded Lansing and broke even with M. A. C. in a two game series. The initial contest was a heartbreaker for Oberlin's aspirations. The Aggies piled up ten runs in the fourth inning, which was their sum total. Oberlin came back in the second game and held the Michiganders to one lone marker, while the Crimson and Gold count was three. Andrews was in good form and his team mates hit most opportunely.

Ohio Wesleyan

Coach Keller was pleased to see his men pound out a victory over the Methodists, 11—3. Jamieson collected four hits in five trips to the plate, while Knesal was content with three. Sheffield hit what should have been a homer but unfortunately missed third.

Wooster

The two weeks lay-off and Wooster's tricky diamond combined to make Oberlin take the small end of a 14—7 score. Nye pitched good ball, but his support was unspeakable.

Wooster

This game was the most exciting of the season. Oberlin tied the count at five all, when pinch hitter Maxted tripled in the eighth. Then Jamieson and Stallings soaked triples in the last inning, and the Wooster defeat was avenged. Nye speared four difficult liners, while Stallings smashed out two singles and two triples for a total of eight bases. Andrews pitched effectively, keeping Wooster's eleven hits scattered.

Alumni

The Varsity baseballers had no trouble in solving the Alumni pitchers' slants. Nye was very effective while in the box, but his removal permitted the ex-students to creep up on the Varsity. However, their rally fell short and the final score was 13—10. Wheeler played fast ball on first, and Stallings had the honor of finishing the season with a homer.

Waseda

This was the best played game of the season. Before a large crowd Oberlin out-batted the Japs and fielded, with equal ability. The nine innings were replete with dazzling plays and the cleanest kind of baseball. Oberlin won, 3—0, because of Andrew's unhittable delivery in the pinches, and the team's timely hitting. Sheffield, Wheeler, Jamieson and Stallings singled in the first inning, two runs crossing the plate, Jamieson's and Stallings' hits in the third produced the other run.

The 1921 interclass baseball season was a distinct success. There were players enough competing for each team to insure good baseball in every game. The Frosh nine proved to have staying qualities in every contest, generally winning in the last inning. 1923 showed flashes of form, but seemed to suffer from lack of pitchers who could locate the plate at critical times. The Seniors, while able to win but two games, gave every opponent a good fight to the finish. 1922 finished last in the class standing, being able to annex only one victory.

Intramural Baseball

As usual, boarding and rooming house leagues gave opportunity for all who cared to play baseball to come out to Dill field and get into a game. Much interest was taken in the Spring sport by these teams, and consequently over 150 men played at least once a week. The old varsity diamond and a new field gave ample space for these intramural contests.

Season 1921

The most conservative writer could not deny that during the season of 1921 Oberlin had one of the strongest and best balanced track teams in the history of the college. With no high scoring record breakers, Coach Metcalf was able to groom a squad, which overwhelmed Case, Wooster, Mt. Union, Reserve, and Ohio Wesleyan, and was good enough to take more places in the Big Six than any other school excepting Ohio State.

Captain Raymond Knesal was the only man to break a record. "Knese" bettered the college mark one inch, when he pole vaulted 11 feet 7 inches. But the Crimson and Gold made up for this absence of individual stars by placing men in practically every event throughout the season, to the consternation of her opponents.

Meets

Oberlin - Reserve - Case

Oberlin auspiciously opened her 1921 track season by avalanching Case and Reserve without the services of Captain Knesal, who was out with a pulled tendon. The final score was Oberlin 49; Reserve 23; Case 18. The meet was held in the Reserve Gymnasium and as usual resulted in a walk-away, due to Oberlin's strength in the distance runs, relay and shot put. The new relay team showed up well enough to win handily, despite McPhee's fall on the last lap.

Oberlin - Ohio Wesleyan

The Crimson and Gold trackers surprised everyone by overwhelming Ohio Wesleyan down at Delaware, in the first outdoor meet. Score: Oberlin 76; Ohio Wesleyan 41. Oberlin gained most of her points in the field events and the distance runs. One Wesleyan man was ruled out for running around a hurdle. King, the Methodist's star accumulated almost half of his team's score. The entire Oberlin squad showed to good advantage, running off every event in close to record time.

Oberlin - Case - Wooster

Oberlin track fans had their first opportunity to see their favorites in action on May 14, and they were not disappointed. Score: Oberlin 84; Case 42; Wooster 36. Mayer won the 100 with ease, while McPhee took the 440. Clipson and Fisher surprised and finished first and second in the half mile run. Salter and H. Dietrich ran away from the field in the two-mile run. Oberlin ran up a heavy advantage by taking firsts in all the field events. Of course Knesal won his event when he broke the pole vault record. Clipson did the half in 2m, 3s; McPhee the 440 in 51 1/5 s; Metcalf whirled the discus 117 feet; Lauthers put the shot over 37 feet and Knesal cleared the bar at 11 feet, 7 inches.

Oberlin - Mt. Union - Reserve

This was a practical repetition of the preceding week's meet. Oberlin rolled up 81 points while Mt. Union secured 54 1/2 and Reserve 26 1/2. McBride of Mt. Union was the big star of the meet with a high mark of 19 points. Mayer showed his remarkable speed and took firsts in the 100 and 220 dashes. Clipson ran the mile in the time of 4m. 37s, while Harold Dietrich stepped the half in 2m. 38.

The Big Six

Coach Metcalf took his stars down to Columbus with the expectation of nosing out Ohio Wesleyan for first place, providing Ohio State did not make her 113 points. But the lack of individual stars, like King of Wesleyan, forced the Crimson and Gold to take second place. Captain Knesal tied Pedan of Otterbein for first in the pole vault, at 11 feet 7 inches. Clipson forced Gurney of State to step the half in 1:59  $\frac{2}{5}$ . Curtis took second in the javelin throw and Smith and Knesal were third and fourth in the broad jump. Oberlin's relay team had to be content with a third, because Wesleyan came to the fore and placed second. No less than five fifths were scored by Oberlin when Salter, Lauthers, McPhee, Newsom, and Dietrich took one point apiece in the two-mile, shot put, 440, 120-yd. Hurdles and the mile run.

Clipson, Penfound, Reed

Cross Country 1921

Winning both dual meets with clean sweeps and finishing second to Ohio State in the state meet held at Ohio Wesleyan, the 1921 Crimson and Gold Cross Country team clearly showed that it was the best team in the Ohio conference. This record makes the 1921 season a complete success.

Hiram was met in the first meet of the season and Oberlin not only won but took the first five places. Reed, Daniels, Dietrich, Clipson, and Cole finished in the order given over a  $3\frac{1}{2}$ -mile course.

At the State meet held at Ohio Wesleyan Nov. 5, Oberlin finished next to State, followed by Cincinnati, Wesleyan, Miami, and Denison. Captain Dietrich finished fifth, Daniels sixth, Clipson eleventh, Cole twelfth, and Penfound fifteenth.

On a cold, wet day, Nov. 19, Oberlin made another clean sweep with Case and Wooster, taking the first five places, Dietrich, Daniels, Clipson, Cole, and Penfound finishing in the order given.

THE SEASON

Oct. 8, 1921 at Hiram—Oberlin 15; Hiram 40.

Nov. 5, 1921 at Delaware—Ohio State, 1st; Oberlin 2nd; Cincinnati 3rd; Wesleyan 4th; Miami 5th; Denison 6th.

Nov. 19, 1921 at Oberlin—Oberlin 15; Case  $36\frac{1}{2}$ , Wooster  $55\frac{1}{2}$ .

Tennis 1921

Oberlin's 1921 Tennis team was rather erratic, displaying the best brand of tennis in the state one day, and the next, succumbing to one of the weakest teams of the conference. Marvin and Howard won letters, while Ayers, Gearhard, and McKibben played in several matches.

Marvin and Howard showed their best doubles work at the Big Six by eliminating Ohio State and taking second place. Marvin and McKibben were successful in most of their matches during the season.

Gymnasium and Field Association

The Gymnasium and Field Association controls women's athletics in Oberlin. Every girl on entering the college or conservatory automatically becomes a member of the organization and may enjoy all the privileges of Dickinson Field and House. Active membership is limited to those who have earned at least one hundred points. There are four regular meetings during the year at which business is transacted and class numerals and O. C. sweaters are presented.

In addition to the four major sports, hockey, basketball, baseball and tennis, instruction was given this year in archery, golf, and soccer. Those who took up golf used the Oberlin Golf Club course on certain afternoons of the week. Though soccer has been played only two years it has become a very popular fall sport. It is probable that next year class teams will be formed and points given which will count toward the O. C. sweater.

The more detailed business of the Association is in the hands of the G. F. A. board which is composed of the following:

Charlotte Moody .....	President
Helen Van der Pyl .....	Vice-President
Laura Grosvenor .....	Secretary
Dr. Helen Cochran .....	Treasurer
Miss Grace Daviess .....	Director of Sports
Josephine Dickson .....	Senior Representative
Ursula Wilder .....	Junior Representative
Wilhelmine Kindlimann .....	Sophomore Representative

Second row: Church, Caulkins, Easton, Daviess, Thomson, Dickson, Hazard.

The O. C. Club

The O. C. Club is composed of those girls who have earned seven hundred points in at least four different sports. Its aim is to promote women's athletics in Oberlin and to maintain the ideals of good sportsmanship. The club is at present larger than it has ever been in the past, numbering about twenty-two members. Surely this is proof of the increased interest shown in women's athletics during the past two or three years. There is an honor still higher than the O. C. sweater which not more than half a dozen girls have achieved in the history of the club. A crimson and gold arm band is awarded to a girl who has earned fourteen hundred points—twice the number required for a sweater. An arm band given this year to Alice Hay, president of the club. The following officers have been largely responsible for a most successful year:

Alice Hay .....	President
Josephine Dickson .....	Treasurer
Wrey Warner .....	Social Chairman

1923 HOCKEY TEAM

Hockey

Hockey gains in popularity each year. A great many girls came out for practice last fall and rivalry was keen for places on the class teams. After a period of careful coaching under Miss Daviess a series of interclass games was played. All the teams showed an improvement over last season's work in passing and accuracy. That the student body as a whole was interested in the sport was evidenced by the large number of spectators present at almost every game.

At the close of the season, Millicent Steer and Wrey Warner, captains of the West Point and Annapolis teams chose their players from the members of the five class teams. There was fine material on both sides and the all-star game promised to be a close one. Due to inclement weather, however, the hockey field was not safe for playing and the game had to be cancelled.

Soccer

Though soccer is a new sport in Oberlin, it has come rapidly into favor. Because so much interest was shown in the practices, Miss Daviess planned a match game. Each girl chosen to be on either team was to receive twenty-five points—the same number as is awarded to members of the all-star hockey teams. But again the Oberlin weather upset the plans and the game was not played. One very gratifying feature of soccer is that it attracts so many non-majors. It is the aim of the G. F. A. to interest all the girls in college in athletics and because soccer has to such a large extent fulfilled this aim, it is certain to have a permanent place in the year's schedule.

Basketball

The first of December brought out the basketball fans and when practices began every class was represented by a large and enthusiastic squad of players. The process of elimination commenced soon after the holidays. The Conservatory team upset all the dope by defeating the Juniors, the champions of last year. They grew famous over night and many said that they were headed straight for the banner. But in the second round the Juniors came back with their old form and won from the musicians. However, 1923 was not destined to hold its title so easily. The Sophomores had played consistently all through the season and came up to the final game with one more victory to their credit than the Juniors. The game was a close one but the Juniors came out victorious and so tied for first place. In the championship game the upperclassmen showed superior playing all the way through and defeated the Sophs by a 31—17 score.

The Seniors played good basketball this year, especially after Grace New-som, the former Con star, joined their ranks. The Freshmen were handicapped in the beginning by lack of team work. But they made rapid improvement toward the end of the season and will no doubt be strong in the championship race next year.

Yale - Princeton Game

Witnessed by almost every girl in college and a number of visiting high school teams, the Bulldog met the Tiger on the evening of March twenty-fourth. The two teams headed by Rachel Rowley and Ruth Savage seemed so evenly matched that no one dared predict the winner. Yale, starting off with a rush made four points in the first minute of play. Princeton made up the difference in no time and the game was nip and tuck until the latter part of the last half. Yale had accumulated a score of 21 and Princeton, in spite of splendid team work, was unable to keep the pace. The final score was 21—16. The game was marked by open and clean passing and accurate shooting. The success of the evening was in large measure due to Miss Daviess's tireless interest and excellent coaching.

Between halves the audience was entertained by a Yale stunt given by the Freshmen of Baldwin and a Princeton stunt put on by Noble Cottage. Then Charlotte Moody, president of G. F. A., presented O. C. sweaters to the girls who had earned them during the year, and an arm band to Mary McCord.

Baseball

With the beginning of the spring term the call was sent out for all Ty Cobbs and Babe Ruths and there was a hearty response from all classes. By April 19, the captains had been chosen and the teams were in condition to play their first games. From then until June, games were played twice a week on Dickinson Field, weather permitting.

Each team had eight games on its schedule, but on the completion of these, the Juniors and Sophomores were tied for first place. The Juniors were out to win, thus adding to their baseball championship honors of the year before. The Sophomores were also out to add a baseball championship to their already acquired basketball honors. However in a game featured by excellent fielding which kept the score low, the Juniors came out on top, winning by a score of seven to four.

The Pageant

The pageant given last year by the women of the teachers' course in physical education took the form of a series of historical sketches. There were five episodes which represented by tableaux, drills, and typical dances, the Greek, Roman, German, Swedish, and English periods. The final episode was a tableau showing the contributions of all countries and ages to Physical Education in America. First appeared the Spirit of Physical Education followed by her attributes, Health, Symmetry, Rhythm, Grace, Skill, and Endurance. Then came a representative from each of the five groups bearing to the Spirit of Physical Education a gift symbolic of its work. The pageant serves not only to present to the students and townspeople of Oberlin the work of the department here but also trains those who are majoring in Physical Education to plan and execute such a demonstration.

The Track Meet

Last spring the second annual Track Meet was held by the Junior and Senior girls majoring in Physical Education. The latter took advantage of their training gained the year before and defeated the less experienced Juniors by a score of 252-147. The girls have taken up this branch of athletics with surprising enthusiasm and it is hoped that in the near future the track meet will be open to majors and non-majors of all classes.

Life Saving Corps

The first Oberlin chapter of the American Red Cross Life Saving Corps for Women was organized in March of this year. The girls received their instruction under Miss Grace Daviess in the women's swimming class of the physical education department, held during the first semester in the Elyria Y. M. C. A. pool. Early in March the following girls passed the regulation Red Cross life saving tests at the Y. W. C. A. pool in Cleveland. Mary Augustine, Laura Grosvenor, Marjorie Jameson, Wilhelmine Kindlimann, Frances Loveless, Mary McCord, Dorothy Raymond, Lora Standish, and Ada Belle Travis. Each life saving corps consists of ten members, and as new groups pass the tests they will form new divisions of the Oberlin corps. Miss Daviess has passed advanced tests and from this time on will conduct the tests for the Oberlin unit.

The chapter has been organized with the following officers:

Wilhelmine Kindlimann .....	Vice-President

Student Government

Student Government instituted some years ago at the request of the student body, operates each year under the supervision of the faculty. The governing bodies are called the Men's Senate and the Women's Senate, whose jurisdiction extends over men and women, respectively. The purpose of these bodies is to point out to the students their common interests and to adjust the differences which may arise between individuals in their relations with their fellow students and the faculty. Thus the Men's and Women's Senates are the mediums of communication between student and faculty at the meetings which are regularly held.

The Women's League, of which every woman of the College is a member, serves as the women's part in self-government. Through its committees it governs the students in their rooming houses and in their social relations.

The Women's Senate is one of the divisions of the League. This body handles problems of the girls which pertain to their boarding houses and all campus activities. All cases of discipline or of changes in regulation are discussed. The meetings of the Senate are held monthly.

The Men's and Women's Honor Courts have absolute jurisdiction over all cases of dishonesty in the work of any student who is reported to it. The Courts are chosen by the members of the respective Senates. These courts may administer reprimands to the student or recommend to the faculty, supervision or dismissal of the student.

The Court of Seven is another phase of student government. Its jurisdiction is the enforcement of the traditions of the men in the College. Its work has been comparatively successful, but more severe measures must often be taken to insure the position of respect to which our traditions are entitled. The success of our student government depends upon the support given it by every student generation.

The Women's League

The Women's League is the women's part of the Student Government of Oberlin. All women upon entering the college automatically become members, and before they come have signed the membership card signifying their purpose to live in accordance with its regulations.

The executive body of the League is the Executive Board, which is made up of the officers of the League and the chairmen of the committees of the League. This board makes recommendations to the Senate and largely determines the policy for the year. It also acts as a disciplinary body on minor offenses.

The Women's Senate is the legislative body of the League. It is a very representative body composed of about sixty members who are the house presidents, and officers of the different campus organizations. Any campus problem may be brought up for discussion by any member of the Senate, and at least a representative opinion obtained on the subject. The aim of the Senate is to bring about a greater feeling of unity and responsibility among the students, and to be a body through which faculty opinion may be given correctly to the students, and the student viewpoint given to the faculty. All changes in the Student Government regulations must be passed by the Women's Senate.

The judiciary work of the League is handled by four bodies. Cases of the breaking of dormitory rules are reported to the House Government Committee, and if serious, are passed on to the Executive Board. Cases which involve registration rules are acted on finally by the Joint Council, composed of the Women's Board of the Faculty and an equal number of student women. This body also considers all proposed changes in the legislation, and is the executive and advisory board of the League. The Women's Honor Court consists of eight upperclass college and conservatory women elected by the Senate, and a chairman elected by the members of the League. It deals with all cases of violation of the Honor System in academic matters.

The League is interested in every phase of the life of the women of the college, and it aims to keep that life in harmony with the ideals and customs of Oberlin.

The Men's Senate

The Men's Senate consists of representatives from each class. The president of each class is a member ex-officio. Besides these there is one elected member from the Freshman class, two from the Sophomore class, three from the Junior class and four from the Senior class. There is also a representative from such organizations as the Y. M. C. A., Associated Students, The Review, "O" Club, etc. Thus nearly all organizations with which men are connected are represented in a small, compact body. It has charge of student activities such as pay days, class elections, the football banquet, etc. It also heads up different student movements and has been instrumental in bringing about many changes.

The Men's Senate serves a vital need in college. It gives the students some authority in governing their own actions and in laying down such laws as it sees fit, but it does not have the final decision on many matters so must be satisfied with the suggestive power which such a body has. However, it is an organization which is representative of the students and is something to which the faculty can turn for co-operation in an effort to better cope with the problems which confront us all here at college.

The Senate is not an organization which can stand alone. The men elected to represent their organization must have the backing of their constituents. They must not be left to shift for themselves. In order to accomplish anything worth while the student body as a whole must be willing to lay aside their own petty interests and co-operate with other campus organizations through the Senate and so accomplish something for the whole school. In this way more can be done with less effort and more satisfaction to all. So far this year the Senate has been very successful. There has been a willingness and readiness to work in a common effort to make things better and to make whatever is attempted a success. Things have been running along smoothly and without apparent effort, but tasks have been accomplished with marked degrees of success.

The Honor System is one of the characteristics of Oberlin and its success is largely due to the backing given it by the students. In order to deal with cases which arise under the Honor System the Honor Court is created by the Senate. This court is elected by the Senate, with the President of the Senate as chairman. The work of the court has been of the highest order and through its untiring efforts has helped bring success to the Honor System. It is up to each individual student to co-operate and keep this on the same level.

Junior Counsellors

Several slight changes in the Junior Counsellor system were made for the year 1921-22, with a view to eliminating certain undesirable factors. A definite attempt was made to associate girls located in the same house or near each other so that the influence of the Junior could be brought to bear more frequently. Such an arrangement was not possible in numerous cases, but, nevertheless, the idea was kept paramount in making the assignments. Plans for further changes are being developed, since the system is not wholly adequate under present conditions. It is hoped that another year will bring far greater success.

The Junior Counsellors' task is a difficult one. It requires time and thought which many girls are unwilling to give. In choosing advisors the attempt is, therefore, to select capable girls willing to help their younger companions in every way possible. The duties of a counsellor vary with circumstances. In general the problem is to help the incoming girls especially at the first of the year in getting adjusted to the new life, to give assistance in solving the problems peculiar to Freshmen and to see that they are happy throughout the year. One of the annual affairs of the college is the afternoon dancing party given by the Junior Counsellors for their Freshman girls.

The Men's Board of the Conservatory fulfills the function of a welfare committee and has general direction of all the interest of those whom it represents. It is not a legislative body, but has charge of the social and business activities of the Conservatory men and establishes a satisfactory co-operation with the Deans. The membership of six is made up of the three officers, and one representative of each of the four classes, thus unifying the activities of the men of the Conservatory.

W. C. A. and the Women's League.

The Women's Board co-operates with Dean Nash both in business and social activities concerning the student welfare. The Board also has the power of appointing the Junior and Senior Counsellors.

The Conservatory Thanksgiving reception and the annual Conservatory Prom, both held in the Art Museum, as well as other less important affairs during the year are the results of the combined efforts of the Men's and Women's Board.

Religious Organizations

There are three days in the Oberlin college year that epitomise its best life—Washington's Birthday, Shansi Day and the Day of Prayer for Students.

Washington's Birthday with its attendant celebration gives expression to that sane progressive patriotism which has helped Oberlin contribute an intelligent, constructive citizenship to America and the world.

Shansi Day is the day of Service. It is a pledge that the martyr spirit will not die out. Human need, need of the advantages Oberlin students possess, need, calling for the service Oberlin trains to give, will always be met with enthusiasm and eagerness.

The Day of Prayer pays annual tribute to the fundamental elements of Oberlin's life. In the beginning the college was dedicated to the service of religion. The religious tradition is its most prized tradition. It stresses the religious interpretation of life. The spirit and purpose of Oberlin's work are fixed by the belief in God at the heart of the world, in Jesus Christ as a saviour of men for the best, in human life finding its highest expression in reverence, prayerfulness and worship.

Four campus organizations, the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. C. A., the Shansi Board and the Student Volunteer Band contribute largely in maintaining the religious tradition. This year all of these organizations have been vigorous and successful. Many students have taken advantage of the opportunities they offer for enlarging interests and understanding. The training which these societies offer in analyzing and meeting religious problems, in giving service expression to religious conviction and impulse and in the careful study of religious sanctions is equipping a large group of men and women to carry the best traditions of Oberlin out into the world.

Young Men's Christian Association

Holding an important place in the religious and social life of the Campus is the Y. M. C. A. It has for its purpose the promotion of a positive moral and religious spirit and to aid in bringing to each individual a finer experience of Christian faith and character. The membership of the organization includes all of those who are in sympathy with this objective and who are willing to co-operate to reach it.

This has been a particularly significant year for the "Y". To begin with, the Cabinet has been very fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Montgomery as secretary. Under his direction the several departments have been able to do most valuable and efficient service. The work has quietly progressed throughout the year. The stages and socials, the Bible study groups in the Sunday schools, the Deputation teams, and especially the Sunday evening meetings have been constantly appealing to a greater number of men.

The work for the new students at the beginning of the year was a great success and the Freshmen have since proved their appreciation by loyally supporting the work of the organization. The church relations committee has worked constantly in organizing groups for membership in the different churches. The employment bureau has made it possible for many men to help themselves by providing a means for the people of the community to give work to these men.

Thus through all of its departments the organization has come constantly close to the life of the men. Especially in the Sunday evening meetings is this true. Here the ever increasing group has listened to discussion of live and interesting topics by able men. Also it has been a feature of these meetings that the men themselves have been given ample opportunity for self-expression and for the talking together of their common problems. The value of these meetings both to the individual and to the religious life of the campus as a whole is proved by the hearty response of the men in their attendance and their enthusiastic participation.

We believe in the “Y” and its work on our Campus. Present success but forecasts what is possible to the organization as it works among the men of the school. It has a very definite mission to perform and we of the present cabinet cherish the hope that the “Y” may ever be more and more an uplifting and inspiring force in the life of the men of Oberlin.

The Y. W. C. A.

The Young Women's Christian Association of Oberlin stands for comradeship in the deepening of the Christian life and in the development of Christian character. It seeks to be of service to the women of Oberlin in all phases of their college experience and to give them opportunity for the expression of their Christian life through service for others. Through the work of the Cabinets and Committees it aims to train women for Christian leadership, in order that they may keep alive the ideals of Oberlin in whatever communities their lives may be cast in later years.

The 1921-22 Cabinet went into office immediately after the spring vacation, and spent much of the remainder of the term in planning and forming policies for the work of the year as a whole. Eaglesmere enthusiasm ran high—the beginnings of a delegation being organized as early as the first of May. Twenty-four delegates were finally enrolled—including Miss Colecord and Miss Nash who represented the association advisory board. The inspiration received during those ten days at the conference gave added impetus to the work here on our campus.

Before the opening of the new college year in September, the cabinet members met for a retreat at Mitiwonga-on-the-Lake. Plans for the coming months were there definitely formulated, and the various phases of our campus problems discussed. Under the enthusiastic leadership of our new secretary, Miss Morrow, the girls returned to Oberlin to greet the new students and to start the year's work in earnest.

Aside from the traditional activities and work of the committees, this year has seen the promotion of several new phases of the work among the girls. The Freshman cabinet is the newest branch of the association and it has already proved its right to a permanent place in the association activities. The cabinet is composed of twenty-five representative freshmen girls whose aim is to bring the freshmen into knowledge of Y. W. C. A. work, thereby deepening their interest and consequently developing leaders for later years.

The Sick Student Committee is also an innovation which has proved highly successful. Through the work of this committee, Browning House has been the recipient of numerous magazines and books, and twenty Victrola records. In addition greetings have been sent to individual girls, and in cases of prolonged illness scrap books and special baskets were sent.

The increased attendance at the regular Sunday evening meetings and general interest in the Y. W. C. A. activities and spirit may in a very large way be attributed to the enthusiastic work of the captains. These representatives of the boarding houses form lines of communication from the office to every girl on the campus. Besides weekly meetings, monthly meetings were held, when they got together in a social way to discuss the best means of accomplishing their tasks and to deepen their friendships together.

The twelve women who constitute the Advisory Board have also contributed much to the success of the year by their genuine interest and support and social relationships with the Association girls.

The year 1921-22 has been both enjoyable and fruitful, but there is every reason to believe that bigger things are yet possible of achievement by future members of Oberlin's Y. W. C. A.

Student Volunteer Band

The Oberlin Student Volunteer Band has maintained this year, as in previous years, their reputation as the largest and most progressive of Student Volunteer Bands in the country. Oberlin now has a representative on the Student Volunteer Council and one also on the Executive Committee of the Student Volunteer Movement. The Band contributed to the support of the Volunteer movement last year, a sum not exceeded by any college. The membership of the Band for the first semester was fifty-five and through their efforts it is expected that the enrollment will be seventy-five in June.

Meetings are held every Sunday morning. The student members conduct many of these meetings as a devotional period in which to strengthen their faith and purposes. Other meetings are conducted by foreign student members and faculty members. Oberlin is exceptionally fortunate in its location having access for the travelling secretaries, who frequently attend the meetings and give personal interviews to those interested in learning more of the purpose and work of the volunteer and the missionary.

Literary Associations

Most of the literary activities of the College have continued this year. The Women's Literary societies, the U. L. A. lecture course, Review, Oberlin College Magazine, Hi-O-Hi, Debating societies have been instrumental in keeping alive the literary interest and have made valuable contributions.

All of these organizations are now under the control and supervision of the new centralized organization which began last year, The Associated Students of Oberlin College. The U. L. A. program has been an excellent one, maintaining the high standards set in previous years. Noted lecturers and entertainers have been brought to Oberlin under the auspices of this organization.

Debate, while it has not shown the promise which it should, nor attracted the support which it deserves, has been a part of the sphere of literary activities.

A growing organization has been effected by the combination of the Women's and Men's Liberal Clubs into one organization. Under the auspices of these organizations valuable forums have been held at which speeches by leaders in political and social movements have been followed by animated discussions. These forums have found a permanent place among the activities of the College.

In addition to these activities, the various departments of the College contribute to the literary life of the campus. Madame Hammer presented an interpretation of Ibsen's Ghosts. In the French and Latin departmental plays, dramatic recitals and the introduction of outside talent, every student is given opportunity to share in the large modern literary movements.

The Associated Students

The Associated Students of Oberlin College, incorporated, was organized for the purpose of uniting those student activities which could best be controlled by such a central organization, so as to eliminate waste and to promote effectively general student interests. Its short two years of history have been chiefly concerned with organization.

All registered members of Oberlin College are members of the Associated Students. The executive board is composed of representatives of the four organizations chiefly concerned, and eight members elected by the student body. The organizations now coming under its jurisdiction are the Review, the U. L. A. Lecture Course, the Oberlin College Magazine, and Debate. The duties of the board are supervisory with respect to these organizations, determining the general policies to be pursued. Matters which naturally come under its jurisdiction are delegated to it by the senates. Policies of general student interest also initiate in this board.

The problems of especial interest this year have been among others; further progress towards a student union, especially with regard to the financial interests involved in the organizations concerned. Co-ordination is being secured during the students' time. Within organizations a competitive system is being encouraged which looks to greater distribution of responsibility, and greater opportunity for underclassmen to work into positions of importance.

L. L. S.

Basking in the pleasantness of newly decorated rooms and the charm and piquancy of Irish literature, behold the L. L. S. on Monday evenings. The spirit of loyal Alumnae is always present now, stamped and molded into the new arrangement of the rooms. And what spirit could be more inspiring? It has been an aim of the society, this year, to prove worthy of the generosity and active interest of the Alumnae.

Parliamentary drill, extempore speeches and debates, papers, choice readings and occasional treats from members of the faculty,—these have made the meetings all too short this year.

The numbers have filled up with a rapidity which has shaken the spirits of years past and challenges the spirits of years to come.

With all this, the social side has not been slighted. Indeed the congenial spirit and friendliness of the Irish heart has seemed to permeate the atmosphere and perhaps the fairies themselves have been tempted in and have lingered there. Who shall know?

Aelioian

Aelioian this year has been pursuing a course in short stories. We are deeply grateful to Professor Sherman for his kind assistance and helpful suggestions in arranging our program. Each Monday night we travelled to a different country,—Italy, France, Russia, Seandinavia, Ireland, England, India, China, Japan and back to America, learning something of the customs of the people, the characteristic style of their writings, and hearing one or more short stories illustrative of the points in question. The roll call has come to be a more vital part of the program, the replies each time bearing on the subject of the evening. This along with our famous extemporaneous speeches and debates makes up our course of study.

To vary the monotony of regular meetings in the “rooms”, we have met occasionally at the homes of some of our members for a combined literary and social program.

By a vote of the Society at the beginning of the year, it was decided that the president share her duties as presiding officer with other members of the Society, thus giving as many as possible the opportunity to have the experience of conducting meetings; consequently we have a new chairman each month.

Phi Alpha Phi

The year 1921-1922 has been the year of the "Little Theater" for Phi Alpha Phi. The subject "American Plays and Players" proved to be intensely interesting and well repaid the study of it. Every Monday night in the Art Building one of the foremost American one-act plays - such as those of the 47 Workshop or Plays - was read or reviewed by one of the members of the society. Interesting talks on matters of stage interest were given by professors.

The editing of the constitution proved to be the most important business undertaking of the society. Several times informal social affairs and the dramatization of short plays afforded diversion from the usual program of extempore speeches and parliamentary drill. In all of its activities this year, Phi Alpha Phi has endeavored to remain true to its three cardinal principles - Friendship, Truth, and Progress.

Sigma Gamma

Recent American literature was our subject for the year. During the first semester we studied American poets and essayists, the second semester American dramatists. Realizing the need for a knowledge of parliamentary drill, we devoted one meeting each month to the study and application of Robert's Rules of Order. Practice in extempore speaking occupied a few minutes of each meeting.

Sigma Gamma shows an increase in number of members this year, but better than this evident growth is the deep interest that each individual member is manifesting in the work of the society. In view of Sigma Gamma's steady progress we can hope for greater success in the future.

Debate

This year, the Oberlin debating teams participated in two debating contests--the triangular debate with Ohio Wesleyan, and Western Reserve, and a debate between the two Oberlin teams. The proposition was the same for the two contests; Resolved: That the open shop policy should prevail in the building trades in all cities having a population of over 100,000.

The first debate, between the two Oberlin teams, was held on Tuesday January 10th. Due to the fact that the same proposition was to be used in this debate as in the triangular contest, it was thought advisable to hold this debate in Elyria. The Elyria High School auditorium was secured for the purpose. Many local alumni attended the debate. There were no judges, but the vote of the audience went to the negative. This preliminary debate was fine practice for the teams, which were to meet Wesleyan and Reserve ten days later.

The triangular debate was held on January 20th. Oberlin's affirmative team debated Wesleyan on the home floor, while the negative team met Reserve in Cleveland. For the first time in the history of the League an open forum followed the debate in Cleveland. Giving the audience an opportunity to ask questions after the debate creates more interest both on the part of the audience and the speakers.

Professor Edwards, of the Public Speaking department, who spent the previous semester at the University of Wisconsin taking post graduate work, again resumed his position as debate coach. To his excellent efforts should go the largest part of the credit for the debating work this year.

The Oberlin Review

Completing the 48th year of its existence as the official student newspaper of Oberlin, the Review is upholding its function as gatherer and disseminator of all the essential news of the college life, and as sane leader of campus thought. Two other phases of college journalism, also, the staff this year has endeavored to give special value: criticism of student and faculty and outside productions, and attention to the intercollegiate movements. The former is handled by student critics when possible; the latter involves an intercollegiate editor, and a file of exchanges in the library for the use of all students.

The news staff of about 25 is replenished from time to time by tryouts lasting seven weeks. The aim of the news policy is to present a well-rounded picture of the student life here. When the articles are necessarily critical and beyond the scope of students, keeping value in mind, faculty critics comment.

In the editorials the editors aim to keep the college life as a whole in mind, and to be guided by certain definite principles, such as vitalization of the group life of the men, co-operation between student activities, and promotion of esthetic, intellectual and athletic interests.

Preparation for newspaper work after graduation is kept in mind so far as possible with a staff of students who have many things to fill up their time. Most of the workers, however, are students who anticipate other lines of work but who find work on the Review highly interesting, pleasant and valuable. In the last few years a considerable number of Review staff people have, upon graduation, gone into metropolitan news offices, and "made good."

The Oberlin College Magazine

The policy of the editors this year has been one of expansion rather than reform. They felt that the change instituted last year could not be perfectly accomplished until the old standards of literary art and the new ideal of popular utility had been in some measure combined. The orthodox poems, stories, and essays, consequently were left to retain their just honor, and eight additional pages were added to accommodate the "Campus interests". An editorial page is now being conducted regularly in which passing events are discussed from the viewpoint of the literary dilettante. The Books and Drama department has taken up three or four works of contemporary fame, and the Graveyard has habitually contained material as funny as a hearse.

Seven numbers have been produced during the year, each one being organized about some activity or season. The Editors have striven to give a definite personality to each issue. Their policy has brought out a generous support from contributors, proving that when people know what to write they will at least try.

The Magazine has tried besides being ostensibly an Oberlin production, to tie up with the literary interests of other colleges and universities. An aggressive exchange has been conducted and support has been given to the Intercollegiate Magazine.

Hi-O-Hi Staff

Work is done! Never again will the 1923 Hi-O-Hi staff wield the vacuum cleaner, the dustless mop, or the duster at the 40 South Professor Street office. The last “dummy” has been laid reverently, yet with sighs of relief, in its final resting place.

Now, as we look back on the past months of labor, we feel that we have added not a little to our store of Oberlin memories; and we hope, as we present to you this book, the result of a common aim to make Oberlin life more real through pen and picture, that our purpose has been fulfilled. And so, 1923 Hi-O-Hi we bid you farewell and goodluck!

Hi-O-Hi Boarding House Representatives

The Boarding House Representatives are the individuals who put the Hi-O-Hi across to the students of the college. It is a job of publicity which entails some amount of work and a larger amount of time.

The Representatives who have helped with the 1923 Hi-O-Hi have been an optimistic and an industrious crew. They were always ready to help with snap shots, house pictures, and the hundred and one small, yet important details, which go into the publishing of a college annual. Without them we could have accomplished little, if anything.

The Oberlin College Chest

The chest plan, started in the college four years ago, has been continually growing and increasing its scope. The chest at present includes local Christian organizations, a Shansi contribution, and miscellaneous appeals such as Red Cross, Famine Relief, and European Student Relief. The local organizations this year are the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. C. A. and the Student Volunteer Band.

The Chest Committee, which is responsible for the raising of the money and the distribution of the funds, is made up of the treasurers of the local organizations, three representatives at large from the student body, and four faculty members. Budgets are drawn up by the cabinets of the local organizations and submitted to the chest committee which for this purpose is made up of the officers going out and those just taking up their duties. On the basis of these budgets and all information at hand in regard to world needs, the budget for the year is drawn up. The campaign takes place in the second month of school and is followed by five pay days at periods of one month.

The Chest method accomplishes a more equitable distribution of funds, eliminates those appeals of unworthy causes which the student body would otherwise be subjected to, and raises and distributes funds in a much more efficient manner. More money has been raised in this manner without the burden being felt severely by a few students. The money all goes to the causes to which it is contributed, the expenses of the campaign and the overhead expenses being met by the proceeds from a function put on by the cabinets of the Christian Association.

The Chest has proven itself a success in past years and will probably remain as long as it is administered in accord with the desires of the student body. The representative nature of the board insures this, so that it may now be called one of the established organizations on the campus.

The Boost Oberlin Association

Following the plan which many other colleges and universities have adopted the Men's Senate through the agency of a committee, submitted for the approval of the Faculty and Administration, at the beginning of the Second semester, a form for the organization and operation of a Boost Oberlin Association.

The aim of this Association as layed down by the committee on formation is:

1. Propaganda among High School men, presenting to them Oberlin College.
2. To further the interests of Oberlin College on the campus by forwarding those enterprises which will make a greater and better Oberlin and opposing those things which may tend to bring the school into disrepute.

Every member of the Faculty, student body and alumni is considered a member of the Association ex-officio. The Association has been handicapped by its youth, that is the lack of precedent with which to work and by the lack of funds, which latter difficulty will be eliminated next year by a definite, established financial policy.

Despite these handicaps, the names of a large number of High School men have been collected and through correspondence and other means Oberlin will be kept constantly before them.

Approximately one hundred and thirty High School men were entertained and taken care of during a tournament held March third and fourth. Everyone co-operated to the fullest in showing these men a good time and it is hoped that these fellows returned home with a fine impression of Oberlin and the feeling that they would like to return as students at some time in the future.

The annual Little Big Six Track Meet on June third will afford another opportunity to entertain High School men. A prospectus for a Boost Oberlin Annual has been prepared and merely awaits the necessary funds for publication. This little book, containing pictures and reviews of the year's activities, will be sent to prospective students, especially those living at such a distance that they are unable to visit Oberlin while considering a school. Some changes and suggestions for new campus activities are being considered and the new year should be an interesting and busy one for the new Association.

The Alumni Association of Oberlin College

OFFICERS

President, Mark L. Thomsen, '98.

First Vice-President, Cleveland R. Cross, '03.

Second Vice-President, Mrs. Laura Shurtleff Price, '93.

Recording Secretary, Marie Wilson, '14.

Treasurer, Howard L. Rawdon, '04.

Alumni Secretary, William S. Ament, '10.

The general administrative management of the Association is vested in the Alumni Council, which consists of one elected councilor from each graduated class, one or two councillors from each local chapter, five from the Conservatory of Music and five from the Graduate School of Theology. This body meets twice a year, once during commencement week and once on Washington's Birthday.

Active supervision of the work of the Association is maintained by the Executive Committee of nine members.

The Alumni Office in the Administration Building is maintained by the Association for the service of the alumni. The time of the Alumni Secretary is occupied in editing the Alumni Magazine, visiting and promoting the interests of local chapters, co-operating with the bureau of appointments, increasing the membership of the Association, planning homecomings and other reunions, assisting individual alumni, transmitting the opinions of the alumni to the college and in short promoting the interest of the alumni and of the college.

The goal of the Alumni Association is the establishment of a solidarity of alumni loyalty and of unity of action which will provide material and spiritual support for the alumni in the cold, cold world, and for the college in its great task of educating "the whole man" for life and service.

Clubs

The position of Clubs in Oberlin differs somewhat from their position in some of our sister colleges. These clubs while they furnish social activities to their members do not resemble sororities or fraternities, but rather their aim is to disseminate useful knowledge along with this friendship and mutual interest. Thus these clubs furnish educational as well as social advantages. The French and Spanish clubs, The Classical club, make a study of the languages in which their interest lies. The Chinese Club has as its aim the arousing of mutual interest and the promotion of friendly relations among the Chinese students in the United States and the understanding of political, social and economic conditions in their native land. The Cosmopolitan club develops better understanding between individuals of the several nations represented upon our campus. The Men's Liberal and Women's Liberal clubs have their purpose in the understanding questions which are of general public interest, both national and international. Their activities have, during the past year, been unusually far reaching and have stimulated an interest in present social and economic conditions.

The Menorah society is composed of Gentile as well as Jewish students. This society makes a study of Jewish problems and literature.

The Clubs in Oberlin fulfill the purpose for which they were instituted, that of development of the individuals along intellectual as well as social lines. Thus these clubs are a benefit to all who come in contact with them.

The French Club

The Cercle Francais has offered to its members this year unusual and varied programs. They have consisted of singing, games and conversation with special music appropriate to the club, an informal lecture by Mme. La-Laurene Johnston, a native of Nice and several plays. Special features were the annual Christmas program, proceeds of which went to French war orphans and a lecture on Les Chansons des Provinces de France by M. Arnold van Gennep.

A new method has been devised whereby a member successfully taking part in the program and attaining a specified number of the meetings is awarded the gold emblem of the club. The membership this year is greater than ever before, including more than a hundred with weekly attendance of seventy-five.

The short plays from modern authors have been most successfully given, while the talks, with lantern slide views, have carried the club to all the countries where Spanish is the native language.

In addition to the regular members the following were elected honorary members: President and Mrs. King, Prof. and Mrs. Jameson, Prof. and Mrs. Cowdery, Prof. and Mrs. Heacox, Prof. and Mrs. Ward, Prof. and Mrs. Moore, Prof. and Mrs. Morrison, Prof. and Mrs. Horner, Prof. and Mrs. Cole, Miss Swift, Major Barton.

The Classical Club

The Classical Club is a comparatively recent organization. It was started two years ago. Its success has increased year by year until now there are over one hundred enrolled. The aim of the club is to give the students of the Classical Department and any others who are interested in such things a better idea of the land, the times, and the customs about which they are studying. Another aim is to give the members of the club an idea of the practical value of these subjects throughout the colleges and schools of the country.

A varied program, informative and pleasurable, was offered. At the first meeting this year Professor Carr told about the work which is being done in the high schools of the country in finding out the practical value of the study of Latin to the students of the secondary schools. At the Christmas meeting Latin hymns were sung. A short sketch was put on, "Votes for Women", giving us a picture of Woman Suffrage agitation in ancient Greece. Stunts were the program for the next meeting. Popular songs of today translated into Latin, charades, and games furnished amusements to all those who attended. Lectures both by men from outside and by men from our own faculty were a source of interest and useful information. Tryouts for a couple of short plays in Latin were held and the plays were presented at the last meeting. The meetings continued only until the Spring vacation, for the aim of the club is not to overburden its members. Plans for next year are already being prepared, and the club will then welcome new members as well as old.

The Chinese Students Club

The Oberlin Chinese Students club began its existence in October 1914. Since then, it has been occupying an important position in the circle of Chinese students. The purpose of this organization can best be summed up in a few words: to work for the welfare of the Chinese Republic at home and abroad; and, to promote friendship and common interests of Chinese students resident in Oberlin. It is one of the many nuclei which together form the Chinese Students' Alliance of North American.

The membership of this year numbers thirty-seven of whom fourteen are young women. With this increased membership the activity of the club has been raised to a high tide. During the sessions of the Washington Conference speakers were sent out to different places to explain the real situation of the Far East with an aim to overthrow false and magnified information. It is earnestly hoped that the growing numbers of Chinese students in Oberlin will be able to bring the two countries on opposite shores of the Pacific into closer contact in years to come.

The Oberlin Cosmopolitan Club

With an enrollment of more than one hundred and fifty students the Oberlin Cosmopolitan Club has been enabled to make several interesting trips. The trip to the Ford plant in Detroit was made in the early part of the school year with a special car. The trip to the Lorain Steel Mills gave many a better appreciation of Industrial America. Trips and hikes are not only educative and entertaining, but they form an invaluable means of bringing students together and forming lasting friendships.

The club has offered for fifteen years and it still offers to the students of Oberlin College an ideal opportunity to come to know and inspire some of the future leaders of the world who are in training in the American Universities.

The Menorah Society

The Menorah Society is a literary organization having as its field of study Jewish ideals and culture as found in politics, literature and the arts. It is not a religious organization and not sectarian in any sense. Membership is open to Jews and non-Jews of all beliefs.

The first Menorah Society was organized at Harvard in 1907. Since then societies have been organized by students, at their own volition in colleges throughout the United States and also in some parts of Canada. The Oberlin branch was started in 1918.

The study for this year is the study of modern Jewish problems. Meetings are held twice each month. At each meeting a prepared talk is given on some topic related to the main subject, and this is followed by general discussion.

The Oberlin Art Association

The Oberlin Art Association, an organization founded in 1912, is composed of members of Oberlin community, the Faculty and student body of Oberlin College. Its purpose is to promote interest in Fine Arts and to stimulate their study in Oberlin and the vicinity. During the year Art Exhibitions and lectures on Archaeology and the Fine Arts are brought to Oberlin. Membership is open to all who are interested in the promotion of the study of art. There are three classes of members: Sustaining members, active members, and associate members. The last named is open to all students of educational institutions in Oberlin and its vicinity. The present members include a large number of students, one of whom is a member of the board of Directors. This organization is doing excellent work in bringing to all who are associated with it a higher appreciation of the Fine Arts.

The Men's Liberal Club

The Liberal Club has passed through its third year, and is continuing to fill the need for an extra-classroom organization where serious subjects may be freely discussed. The Club has rigidly held to its avowed policy of being non-partisan. No subject is ever ruled out on the grounds that it is too radical or too reactionary. The organization as such takes no stand on the questions discussed at the meetings, but the members of hte Club are left to form their own opinions. By promoting open mindedness and willingness to hear any proposal, honestly and seriously advocated, straight political thinking on the part of the undergraduates will be brought nearer to practical realization.

The Men's Liberal Club, acting in conjunction with the Women's Liberal Club brought several prominent speakers here. Early in the school year, a debate on socialism, between Norman Thomas and Raymond Robins, was held in the Chapel. Other speakers brought here by the two clubs are Dr. Teyhi Hsieh, a Chinese diplomat; Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga, a member of the Japanese delegation to the Washington Conference; and Taraknath Das an advocate of the Gandhi movement in India.

The Women's Liberal Club

The Women's Liberal Club has had one of the best years of its life. It was organized in 1920 for the open-minded consideration of any social, economic or political question and it welcomes any honest point of view. Its effort has always been to face the truth fearlessly regardless of how many prejudices and conventions this may trample upon. A position like this necessarily implies more or less emphasis on the side of questions that is often neglected in ordinary considerations.

One of the most important phases of the work of the Club has been the joint work with the Men's Club. With them it has put on a debate on Capitalism vs. Socialism between Raymond Robins and Norman Thomas. This debate has been characterized as one of the biggest events in Oberlin in years. During the month of November the Clubs carried on a series of meetings relative to the Disarmament Conference at Washington. Among the speakers were Dr. Hsieh of the Chinese delegation; Dr. Toyokichi Iyenaga presenting the Japanese side of the Question; Dr. Taraknath Das speaking on the Ghandi movement in India.

The Club believes that the cause of liberalism is one of the great needs of time, that a more intelligent and unprejudiced citizenship is the hope of our civilization. To this end it gives its best efforts. It does not hope for immediate results always, but it is willing to work steadily toward its ideal with the belief that in so doing the results will ultimately come.

The Dramatic Association

The Dramatic Association opened the season of 1921-'22 with an active paid-up membership of 150, divided into twelve groups each with a leader, stage manager, property man, etc.

Each group prepared one or two modern one-act plays for presentation before the association in Sturges Hall. These productions were then worked over and given public presentation with paid admission.

In November work was begun upon the Autumn home program consisting of Lord Dunsany's "A Night at an Inn," John M. Synge's "Riders to the Sea," and Frank Tomkin's "Sham," produced in Warner Hall, December 16.

These plays were then taken on tour, during the Christmas vacation. The trip opened in Flint, Michigan, December 22nd and engagements were then played in and around Chicago including Winnetka, Roseland, and Oak Park. Eighteen people were carried with twenty-seven pieces of baggage, including all the necessary scenic equipment, full lighting effects, costumes, properties, curtains, etc. The tour was under the direction of Professor Philip D. Sherman.

This season the Association added to its activities the production of the highest type of moving pictures for the benefit of Oberlin students and citizens. Approximately $1,500 was invested in equipment, including machines, the newest type of diamond bead screen, transformer, lenses, etc. Finney Chapel was rented and a series of ten pictures was run, including "The Three Musketeers", "Disraeli", "Way Down East", "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" and other features. The films were secured direct from the leading producers and as the Association aimed not at making money, but merely at breaking even on the venture the admission price for pictures, costing $1.10 in the cities, was maintained at 35c or 30c when season tickets were used. The response on the part of the general public was exceedingly gratifying and audiences averaging a thousand saw the pictures. The Association will continue this work until the College builds its own auditorium and theatre and installs permanent equipment of the most modern type.

Additions and improvements were made during the year in Sturges Hall. The Association built a concrete walk around the south side from Professor St. to the rear entrance of the building. During the fortnightly program the west entrance was closed, providing room for scene shifting, etc., and the audience entered by the east door. Dressing rooms were constructed in the basement. A handsome tan velour curtain was installed at the cost of $350. The lighting system was improved, and additions were made to scenic and property adjustment.

The Association filled a number of one night engagements out of town, including Canton, Marietta, Lorain, Norwalk, and Cleveland, where a performance was given in The Thimble Theatre, conducted by Robert McLaughlin, lessee and manager of The Ohio Theatre.

Musical Organizations

The place which musical organizations hold in the student life is perhaps greater than that of any other group of organizations. Oberlin has always had active musical clubs and the past year has shown this to be true in a remarkable degree. Due to the Conservatory with its abundance of excellent leadership and the wealth of talent from which to draw, our organizations reach a high degree of perfection.

The Musical Union has this year maintained itself and its high standards. Under the direction of Dr. Andrews the Union gave two concerts, the Christmas concert and the May Festival. The Men's and Women's Glee Clubs, under direction of Mr. Wirkler, have had most successful seasons. While on the road the clubs were well received and royally entertained. The instrumental organizations revived this year and did better work than they ever had before. The College Band and the Mandolin club, due to the activities of Mr. Frederick were very active. The band performed with credit to itself at the football games and during the basketball games. The Mandolin Club appeared in a home concert and in several adjoining towns. The Conservatory Orchestra under Dr. Andrews has been doing very good work.

There are enough clubs in Oberlin so that practically every student who is musical, and is interested in music has an opportunity to develop his particular line. Every club has a capable director who is able and willing to help in every way so that the individual and the group may improve.

Because of the high standard which the public demands and the cost entailed in keeping up this standard, the Union has adopted a guarantor system whereby the public is given a chance to support the organization.

Oberlin Musical Union

The Oberlin Musical Union is a group of singers banded together under the able leadership of Doctor Andrews for the purpose of rendering various choral works. The organization has, in the past set a remarkably high standard in its work and has admirably maintained its reputation this year.

The Glee Clubs

To recruit thirty candidates for the vacancies in two organizations, to unearth somewhere thirty appropriate musical compositions, to conduct the correspondence in connection with thirty concert engagements, to attend regularly to thirty weeks of rehearsing, to arrange the transportation for thirty travellers twice a season, to feed thirty hungry youths and to provide food for thirty damsels, to smile patiently while thirty young men assemble for concerts, to wait without anxiety for thirty young women to organize themselves for public appearance, to spend thirty days in travel, to meet pleasantly thirty local committees, to perform with enthusiasm before thirty audiences, to see that Oberlin is well represented before thirty communities, to deny ones self thrice thirty opportunities for personal recreation—this in brief is the good lot of the glee club management.

The Men's Glee Club entered upon its program for the season in September with ten ex-members and with eighteen new men to be built into a singing organization. Never before did such a task confront an Oberlin glee club. This year's club went into the work with determination and came through with excellent success. A series of thirteen concerts in the East during the winter recess, five appearances, and participation on ten other occasions represents the musical schedule of the club. For several years the club has not found it possible to undertake tours to remote parts of the country because of the costs in connection with travel. It is hoped that very soon the club will be visiting communities at greater distances which are seeking the services of the Oberlin College Glee Club.

The Women's Glee Club rounded out its fourth season and made a very brilliant record at home and abroad. Over half of its membership was retained from the previous year, which made it possible for the club to be ready for outside representation early in the season. Eight concerts in the East during the spring vacation, five concerts in places near Oberlin, two concerts in Oberlin, and appearance at six other public events make up the musical program of the organization. This is a very creditable series of engagements for any college organization and it is one not matched by any other college women's singing society in the country. It is safe to believe that the Women's Glee Club of Oberlin College has no limit to its musical possibilities, for there is such a wealth of material in the institution.

Both clubs while enroute on their respective tours occupied the private car "Advance" and each and every member of the organizations revert in their thought to the excellent accommodations and the happy experiences in the place which became a wonderful home for a traveling band of minstrels and a troupe of songstresses.

Oberlin College Band

Due largely to the able leadership of Professor Frederick and the hearty co-operation of the athletic authorities, Oberlin has this year been represented by a better college band than at any time since the days of Jack Wainwright. Regular practices have been held every week and the band has appeared at all important athletic events of the year. Membership includes college, conservatory, and theological students. The greatest need is for a better balanced instrumentation including a larger proportion of clarinets and saxophones.

Mandolin Club

Starting with a nucleus of six members from last year, the Mandolin Club has gradually built up an excellent, well-balanced organization. Professor Frederick of the Conservatory of Music assumed charge of the club early last fall. Ten new members were admitted, bringing the total number up to sixteen, a membership slightly larger than last year. During the fall months weekly rehearsals were held, but beginning with December, two practices every week became the rule.

The Club's initial appearance was before the Men's Club of Avon, Ohio, on January 11th. Following this concert similar engagements were given in other nearby towns. These concerts prepared the Club for its Home Concert, which was held in Warner Hall on March 11th.

Although never before undertaken by the Club, a spring tour is being planned for the April vacation. This trip will probably include the towns in Northern Ohio and Pennsylvania not touched by the Glee Clubs of the college.

Representative Women

The 1921 Hi-O-Hi two years ago originated a plan of selecting the three women who seemed best to represent the Oberlin ideal. In accordance with the precedent thus established a similar selection by popular vote was made last year and again this year. The popularity of a girl chosen to represent the Oberlin type depends upon three distinct factors,—first, her ability as a student,—second, her personal qualities, and third, the character and breadth of her interests.

Her ability as a student enters in to a great extent, as a result of the high standard of scholarship maintained in Oberlin College. A girl who is truly representative of Oberlin is of more than mediocre mental ability, even though her grades may not be of the very highest. By her own good standing in scholarship she aids in upholding the standard of her alma mater as a whole. In her studying she has labored for it as well as for herself.

More important still, however, are the personal qualities of the representative woman. Tact, vigor, administrative capacity, reliability, magnetism and an understanding heart are all essential in her personality, for a leader must possess all of these qualities in order to be an effective executive. A sympathetic reaction to the views and interests of others is perhaps the most important of these personal characteristics.

The third factor, that of comprehensive breadth of interests is also requisite in a woman typical of Oberlin life. When a person's enthusiasm is centered in but one or two activities his viewpoint is narrowed and his leadership becomes valueless. But on the other hand when an individual manifests a vital interest along various lines, spiritual and physical as well as mental, when there is a definite orientation toward things that are high and ennobling, wide activity and breadth of vision are inevitable concomitants. Women who possess these qualities in proportionate relation to each other will have participated extensively in the activities of their alma mater, will have striven for her gain rather than for themselves alone, and will thus be worthy to be acclaimed representative of her ideals and her standard of excellence.

The Greatest Nuisance

THE Hi-O-Hi office has been so cluttered up with ballots, with letters of inquiry, with members of the staff, with Review reporters, Oberlin College Magazine reporters, representatives of the Critic, the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. C. A., the Secretary's office, the Plain Dealer, the President's office, secret service men from Washington, representatives of the foreign offices of Great Britain, China, the French Club, Patagonia, Germany, Russia, France, Belgium, and Brazil, demanding and requesting information in regard to the greatest Nuisance on our campus, that the staff really feels it incumbent upon it to open at least a part of its files for inspection.

To give the exact information in regard to this weighty and momentous problem makes the Staff blush even to the doorknob which has had the porcelain knocked off of it. For in spite of all the rumors to the contrary, and all supposedly authentic statements, the members of the office force, including our cat, have felt that the honor, which we are about to bestow, must not go out of the family. Some suggested that the degree of Master Nuisance be presented to some one of our contemporaries on the campus. Other rampant Bolsheviki maintained that certain of our classmates had shown themselves worthy. The official critic of the annual was loth to have it even suggested that the Ph. D. degree might possibly go to anyone but a Dean or other person similarly qualified. But to return to the cause of the heretofore-mentioned blush. That blush was one of modesty, coyness, shyness and embarrassment. While hundreds knocked at the door and thousands clamored for the honor we are dispensing so gratuitously, it was decided to take the matter in hand, to brave all criticism, to stand for the truth, nothing but the truth, and the whole truth at that, and award this coveted degree to the

A Gateway to Progress

There it stands—a simple forty-foot gateway but unlike any other in the entire world. Through it have come many of the engineering ideas that have made this an electrical America.

The story of electrical development begins in the Research Laboratories. Here the ruling spirit is one of knowledge—truth—rather than immediate practical results. In this manner are established new theories—tools for future use—which sooner or later find ready application.

The great industries that cluster around Niagara Falls, the electrically driven battle ships, the trolley cars and electrified railways that carry millions, the household conveniences that have relieved women of drudgery, the labor-saving electrical tools of factories, all owe their existence, partly at least, to the co-ordinated efforts of the thousands who daily stream through this gateway.

THE BUSINESS COLLEGE AT OBERLIN is now regarded as the leading school of business training in the middle West. It was the first Business College to be placed upon the Accredited List of Ohio Colleges by the State Department of Public Instruction and more of its graduates hold State Certificates than all other similar schools combined. Its students are high school graduates which has had much to do in giving this school its reputation for thorough work.
